SO PROUDLY WE HAIL OUR NATION...

Proudly and fondly we hail our nation that has afforded us the privilege of Catholic education. In the pursuit of it, we Hallahan students are making use of one of the four freedoms, the freedom of religion. At the same time, we are preparing a firm foundation for useful and intelligent citizenship in a land of opportunity. Our fathers and brothers are fighting on the battle fronts of global warfare that the four freedoms may continue to exist not only for our generation but for all people and for all times. It is quite natural to expect that in our pride and love of nation, we are surpassed by none. Hallahan has always been outstanding as a leader. We have set the pace in selling war bonds, buying jeeps and bombers and in outfitting kits for chaplains. You will always find us in the front ranks of those who hail proudly our nation and Americans who fight valiantly in its defense.

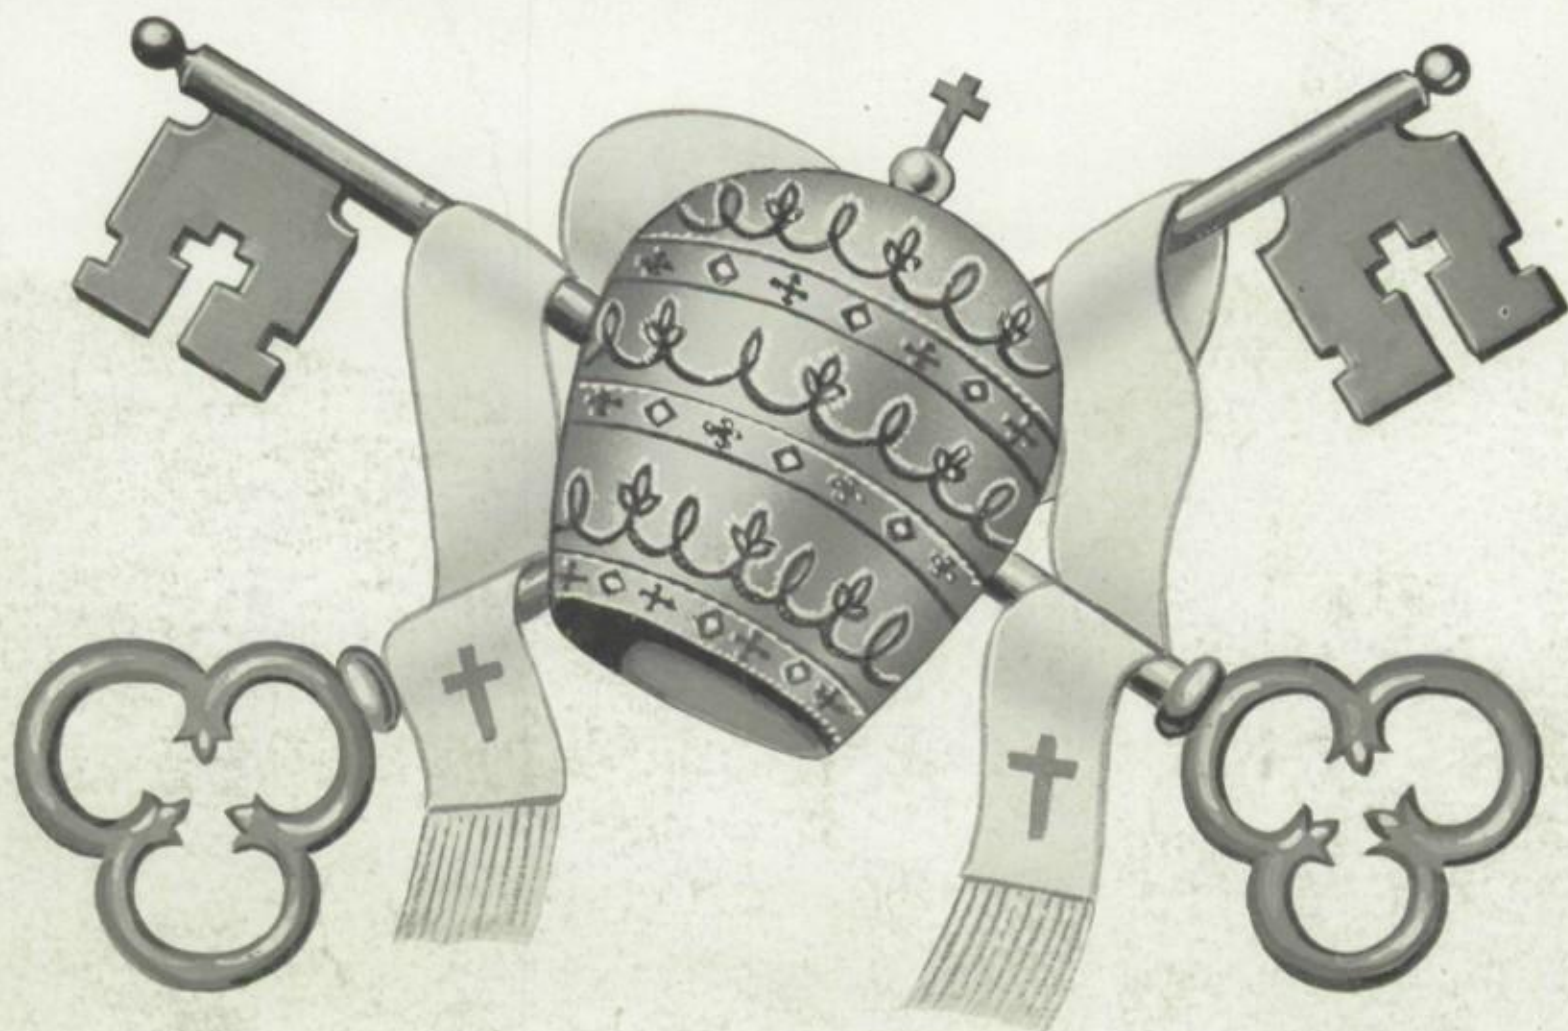

and all for which it stands

SO PROUDLY WE HAIL OUR RELIGION

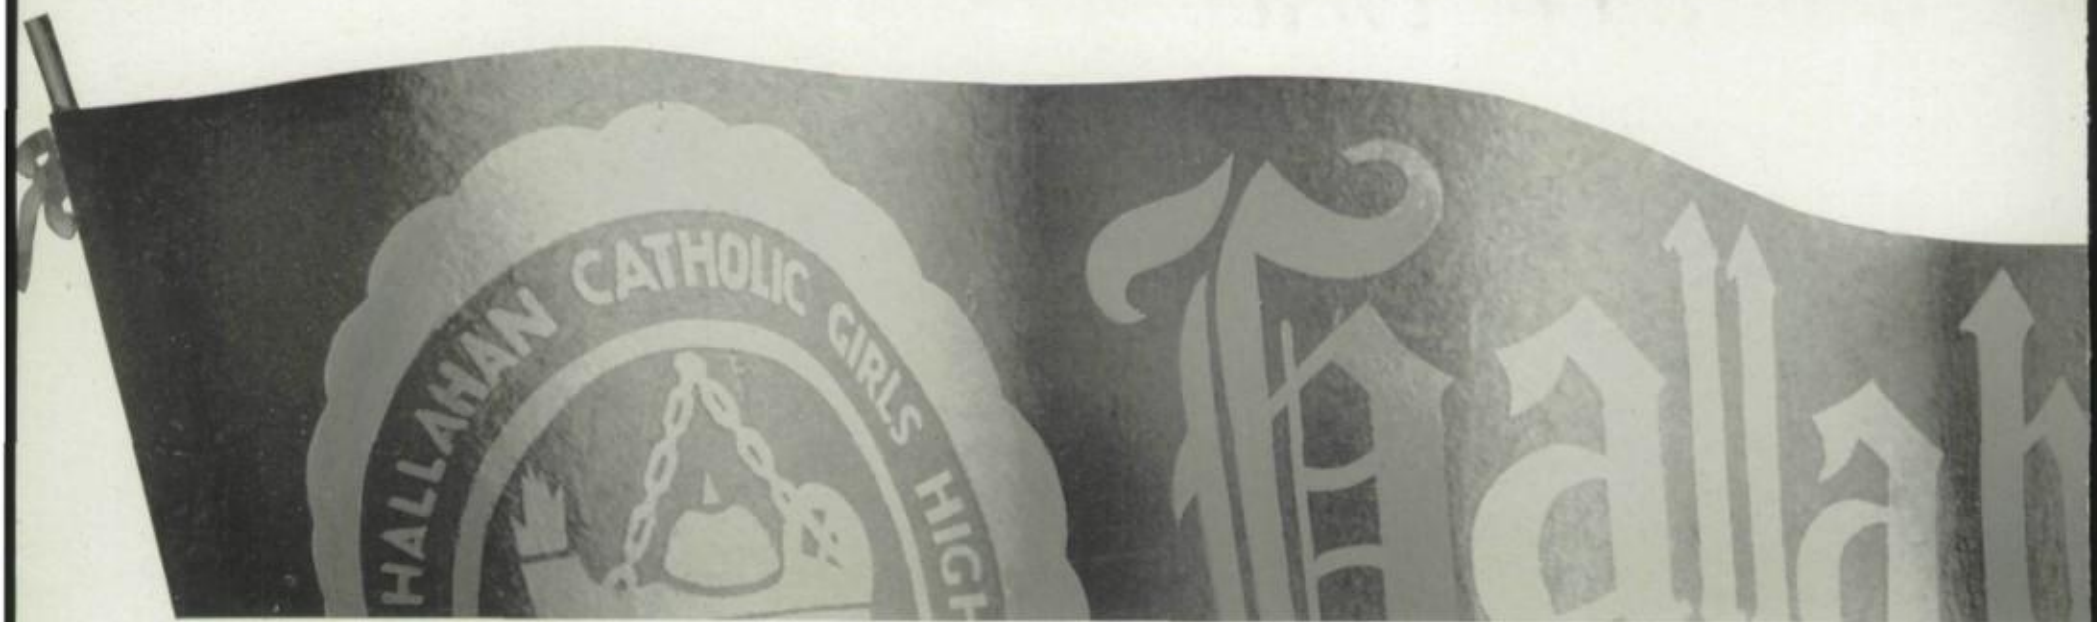

and all that it means to us

Proudly and devoutly we hail our religion. Hallahan may well boast of an excellent curriculum for its students. This, however, does not make her distinctive; the fact that she was founded first for religion, and then for secular learning, does. Our students realize that if business and academic studies alone were desired, there are doubtless many institutions which could qualify, but they chose instead a school whose principles are based on religion and whose atmosphere is a Catholic one. Here, the girls are taught a philosophy which should permeate their everyday lives, making them richer and happier. In these days, when there is much incorrect thinking, Catholic philosophy is invaluable. Even when surrounded by bigotry and hate, the logical, Christian reasoner will not find it difficult to hold her own. The student trained in a Catholic institution will more easily recognize fallacy from truth, and will attribute to this business of living important significance. It is because of this conviction that Hallahan was founded; in adherence to such principles lies our greatest glory and highest privilege.

SO PROUDLY WE HAIL OUR SCHOOL

and all its glorious traditions

Proudly and loyally we hail our school, the mother of the diocesan high schools for girls, the first of its kind in Catholic educational history. Roman Catholic, established in 1890, was the first diocesan high school for boys in the United States. A little more than twenty years later Hallahan, the Catholic Girls' High School was founded in 1912. As such it became the nucleus for the other diocesan girls' high school in the vicinity of Philadelphia today. Initiative and the stalwart spirit of the pioneers are part of the famous Hallahan tradition.

Leaders

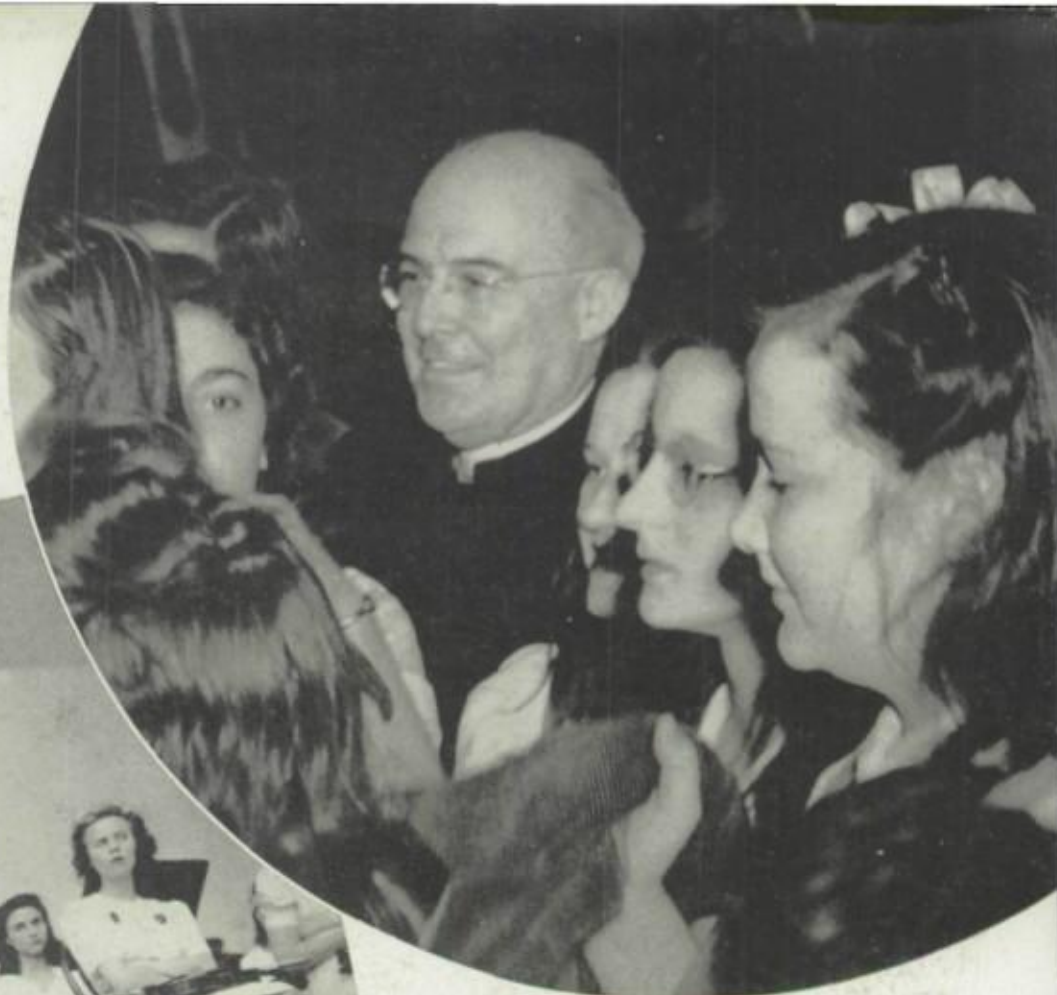

Rt. Reverend Monsignor
John J. Bonner, D.D.,
Superintendent of Catholic Schools

The diocesan high schools of Philadelphia are blessed with the spirited leadership of Right Reverend Monsignor John J. Bonner, D.D., Diocesan Superintendent of Schools. Through his zeal and able supervision, these schools hold a prominent place in Catholic Education in America. Hallahan's student body finds in Monsignor, a congenial and most inspiring character. He is ably assisted by Reverend Joseph A. Gorham, S.T.L., and Reverend Edward M. Riley, J.C.D., former professor at Roman Catholic High School. These great men prove they are capable of furthering the high ideals of Catholic Education and tradition.

for Success

Whether at installation exercises or a concert at the Dell, Monsignor Bonner finds time to congratulate us. In school or abroad, our activities are inspired by the enthusiasm and wise leadership of our superintendent.

The faculty of St. Peter's is made up of the Sisters of St. Francis, Missionary Sisters of St. Francis, Sisters of St. Joseph, Sisters of Mercy, and Sisters of Notre Dame. Here, as in the main building, the faculty members lend their aid in all activities. That St. Peter's brought in 1000 blood donors, that they sold bonds in the War Loan Campaigns, and diligently helped in the sale of tickets for all activities, is due in no small manner to the spirit of the faculty. They help the students to develop right habits of study, and aid in their adjustment from eighth grade to high school. Because the annex itself is small, does not imply there is not a lively animated enthusiasm among its students. This is developed and directed by the counsel of the faculty. Their efficient guidance is clearly seen in the loyal students who come each year from this annex.

Educational opportunities provided by our school are comparable to the finest in the country. The students interested in a business career may choose the commercial course, and those anticipating college or professional work, the academic. Girls with artistic and musical talent can get training and experience. Achievement with food and clothes is gained through home economics. Religion and English are required subjects, but the many electives enable the student to major in the field she selects. Our curriculum is noted for adaptability and breadth of opportunity.

In a freshman class of World History, Teresa Quinn has just discussed the Austrian Empire, while Ann Curran is locating that vast and important territory on the map. First year history covers the period of time from primitive man to the Middle Ages. This lesson gives to the students an appreciation for the ancient art and culture. It's interesting—really!

Delight in the new religion texts, "The Way, The Truth and the Life," is being registered by freshman reader Elizabeth Aylmer and received enthusiastically by her classmates. Pictured in the foreground are: Margaret Kriebel, Eileen McCarthy, Nancy Inforzata, Barbara Julieno, Noreen Lydon, Mary McArdle.

Freshmen are the newest comers to Hallahan and they bring with them vitality, new ideas, and determination to help their school rank as the finest in the land. The present freshman class consisting of eight hundred high spirited students will probably go down in history as one of its most cooperative classes. This custom of coming to school by trolley, of having six or seven different teachers, of studying French and Latin, of wearing the coveted Hallahan uniform is all new and wonderful to them. They have also made a significant contribution to the war effort of our school. In sport activities the freshmen are not found lacking in ability to participate in class basketball and on hockey teams. In the field of music the freshman orchestra stands out as a great achievement. On the honor roll may be found the names of many first year students, indicating that intelligence is the mainstay of the class of forty-seven. In this year the freshmen who really have what it takes lay the foundation of a happy high school career. Our school motto Aptate Lampades Vestras applies to this class, for they keep trimmed their lamps.

Our Freshmen Class of 919

Art is most interesting for Catherine Meehan, Rosemary McGuckin, Dolores Harkins, Bernice LeGama, and Frances Volk, all of whom, are in the foreground of this picture. At present, they are painting their Christmas water color plates. This is one of their many projects.

Algebra is a compulsory subject for all freshmen. But such mathematicians as Margaret O'Fee, Dolores Tate, Elaine Peters, and Roberta Rodefeld are not finding it too difficult. They are now demonstrating that an equation must be exactly the same on each side. It is very easy with blocks but not quite so easy when you are using letters and numbers.

The classical language, Latin, is very fascinating to freshmen because it is the language used in the Mass. At present Bernadine Murphy, Angelina Mariano and Philomena Amaro are wrestling with difficult Latin participles.

Perhaps one of the most essential factors in learning French is being able to read it. The first year French book, with its interesting short stories, encourages beginners to do just this. Marie Koff, Mary Ganson, Margaret Duffy, Margaret Kriebel, and Elizabeth McNichols, as well as the rest of the freshmen in this picture, enjoy reading French.

St. Peter's Annex,

Here are some freshmen who look as if they could bring Latin to life again. Standing are Lillian Bruno and Dolores Seaman while Esther McElroy pays undivided attention.

French verbs can be quite confusing so these freshmen are discovering as they plod through the imperative mood. Both Margaret Sexton and Catherine Stewart lead their fellow students.

St. Peter's Annex, previously Hallahan's largest and most widely-known annex, is now the only one remaining. Since its founding in 1936, its enrollment has included a large body of sophomores and freshmen, but this year only freshmen attended. St. Peter's can always be depended upon to support the main building in all its activities. The members of its glee club and orchestra consider it a privilege to be a part of the Hallahan ensemble, and work hard to fit themselves for it. For those more athletically inclined, the Leaders' Club was formed. No matter what her choice of study may be, the industrious young student will find the educational facilities and the methods of teaching more than ample to satisfy her needs.

Here's to You!

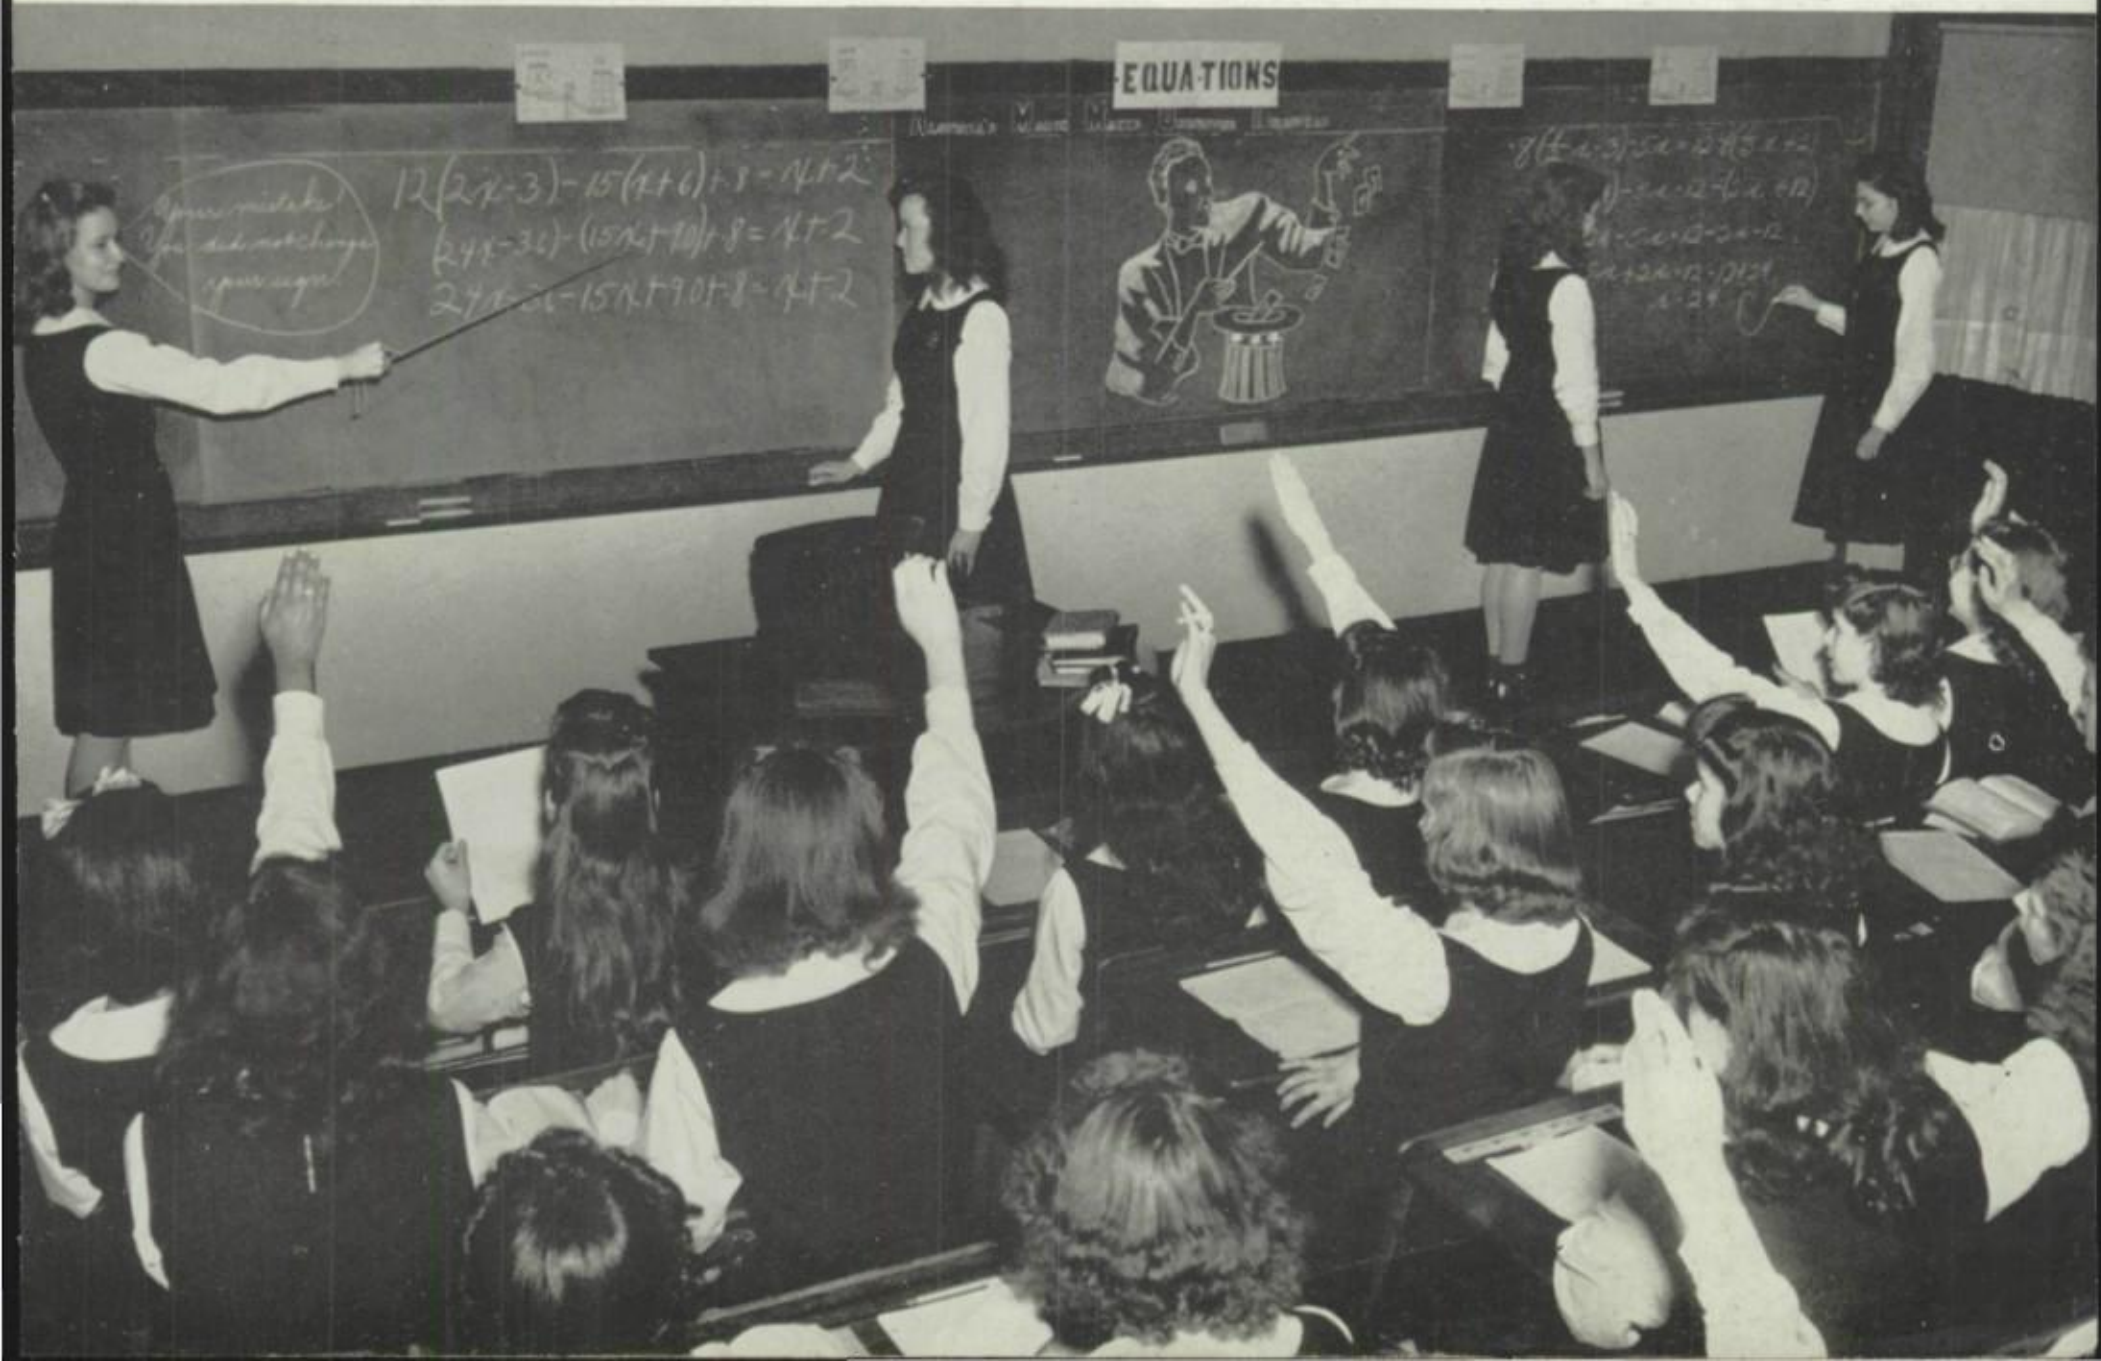

Young artists-in-the-making earnestly develop their budding genius in an art class. Dolores McManus, Rita Casolena and Catherine White, in the foreground, copy from a model of modernistic art held by another student.

Students of world history, these freshmen are absorbed in the study of the Industrial Revolution. Mary Jaskowiak attempts to trace it on the map, while fellow-students aid her by writing an outline of the work.

In a freshman algebra class, Mary Walsh points out the error in Anna Hampson's problem. In a remote corner, Clara McInnis corrects the work of another student. The members of the class eagerly participate since mathematics trains the young mind.

A Year to Grow

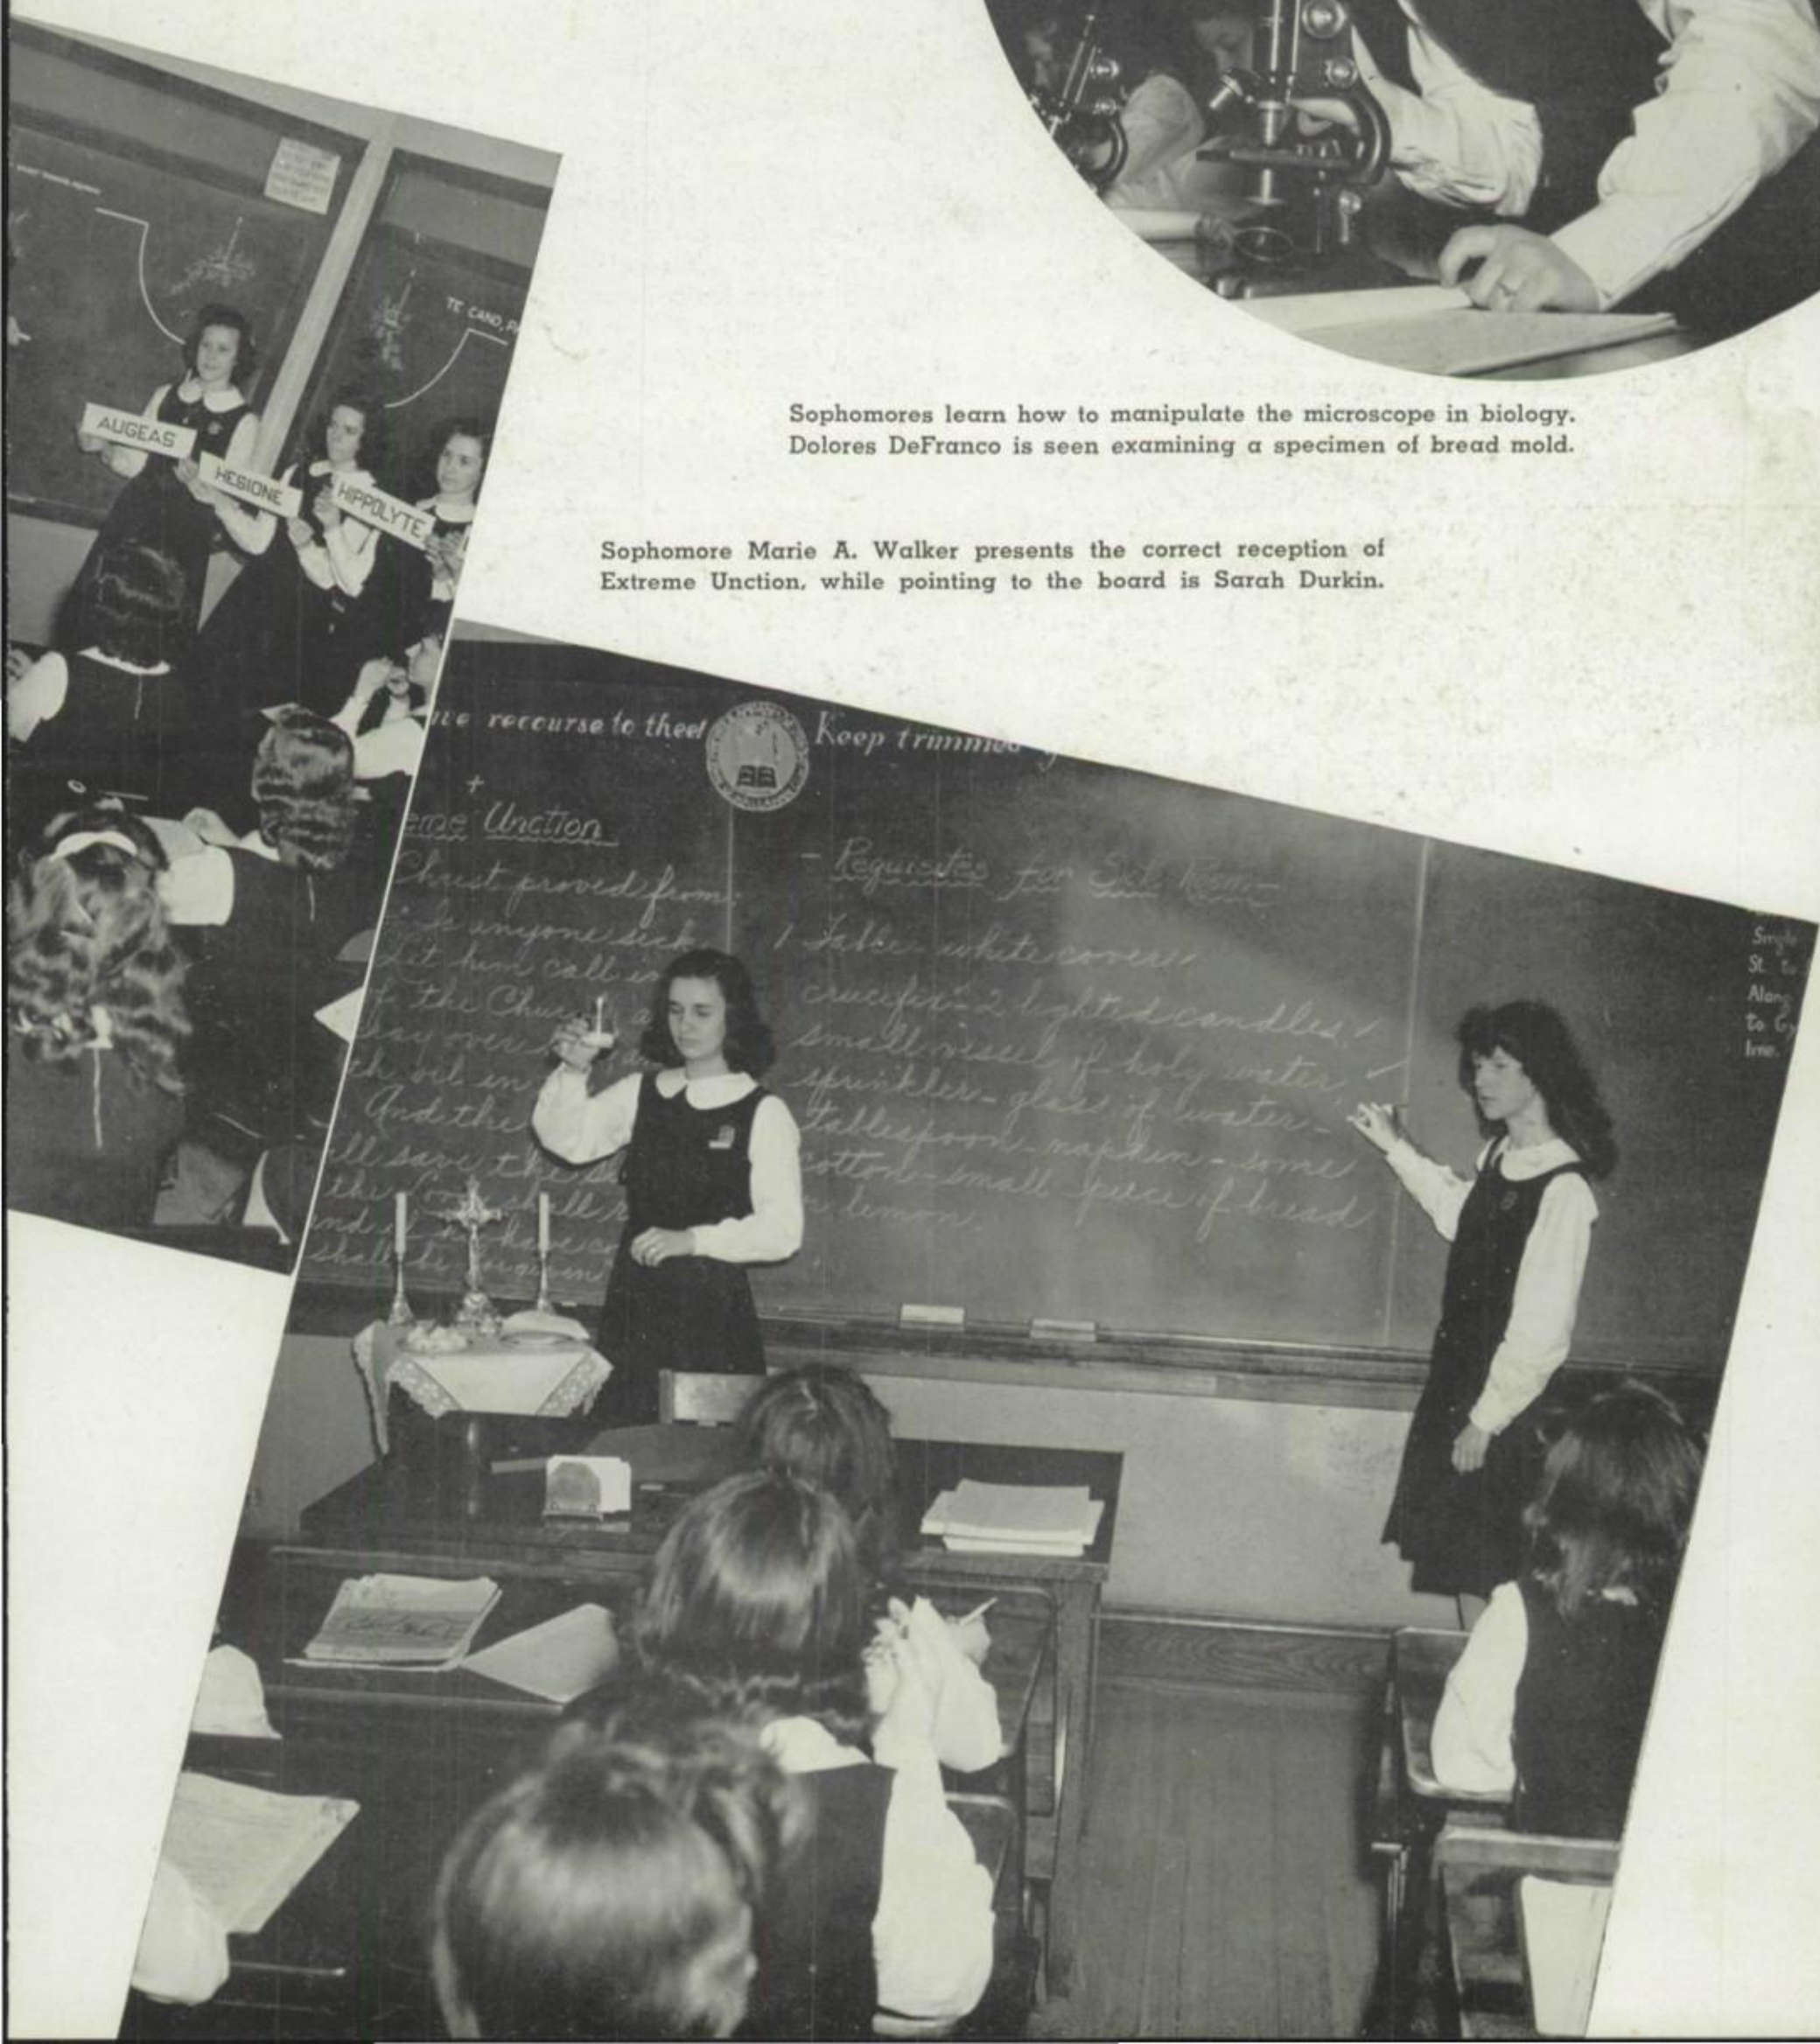

Former freshmen now step out proudly wearing those loyal blue emblems. They are quite at home and have the true Hallahan spirit about them. High school really commences as the sophomores are initiated into science and mathematics courses. Religion II, English II, biology, and geometry are required subjects. Those with artistic talents may elect Vocational Art I as a major subject. The students find that Latin is a very vibrant language when they read the stirring chapters of Caesar's Gallic Wars in Latin II. French II teaches the young ladies to parlez-vous with more ease and fluency. Sophomores may go out for extra-curricular activities in which their athletic, dramatic, and other talents are revealed. Formerly many sophomores attended St. Peter's Annex. This year all were in the main building at Hallahan.

Eager sophomores wait to display their mastery of the labors of Hercules. Mary McGovern, Ann F. Cassidy, Patricia M. Drobile, and Mary McFadden hold the names which are being supplied in the correct spaces. "Admeta" has been found.

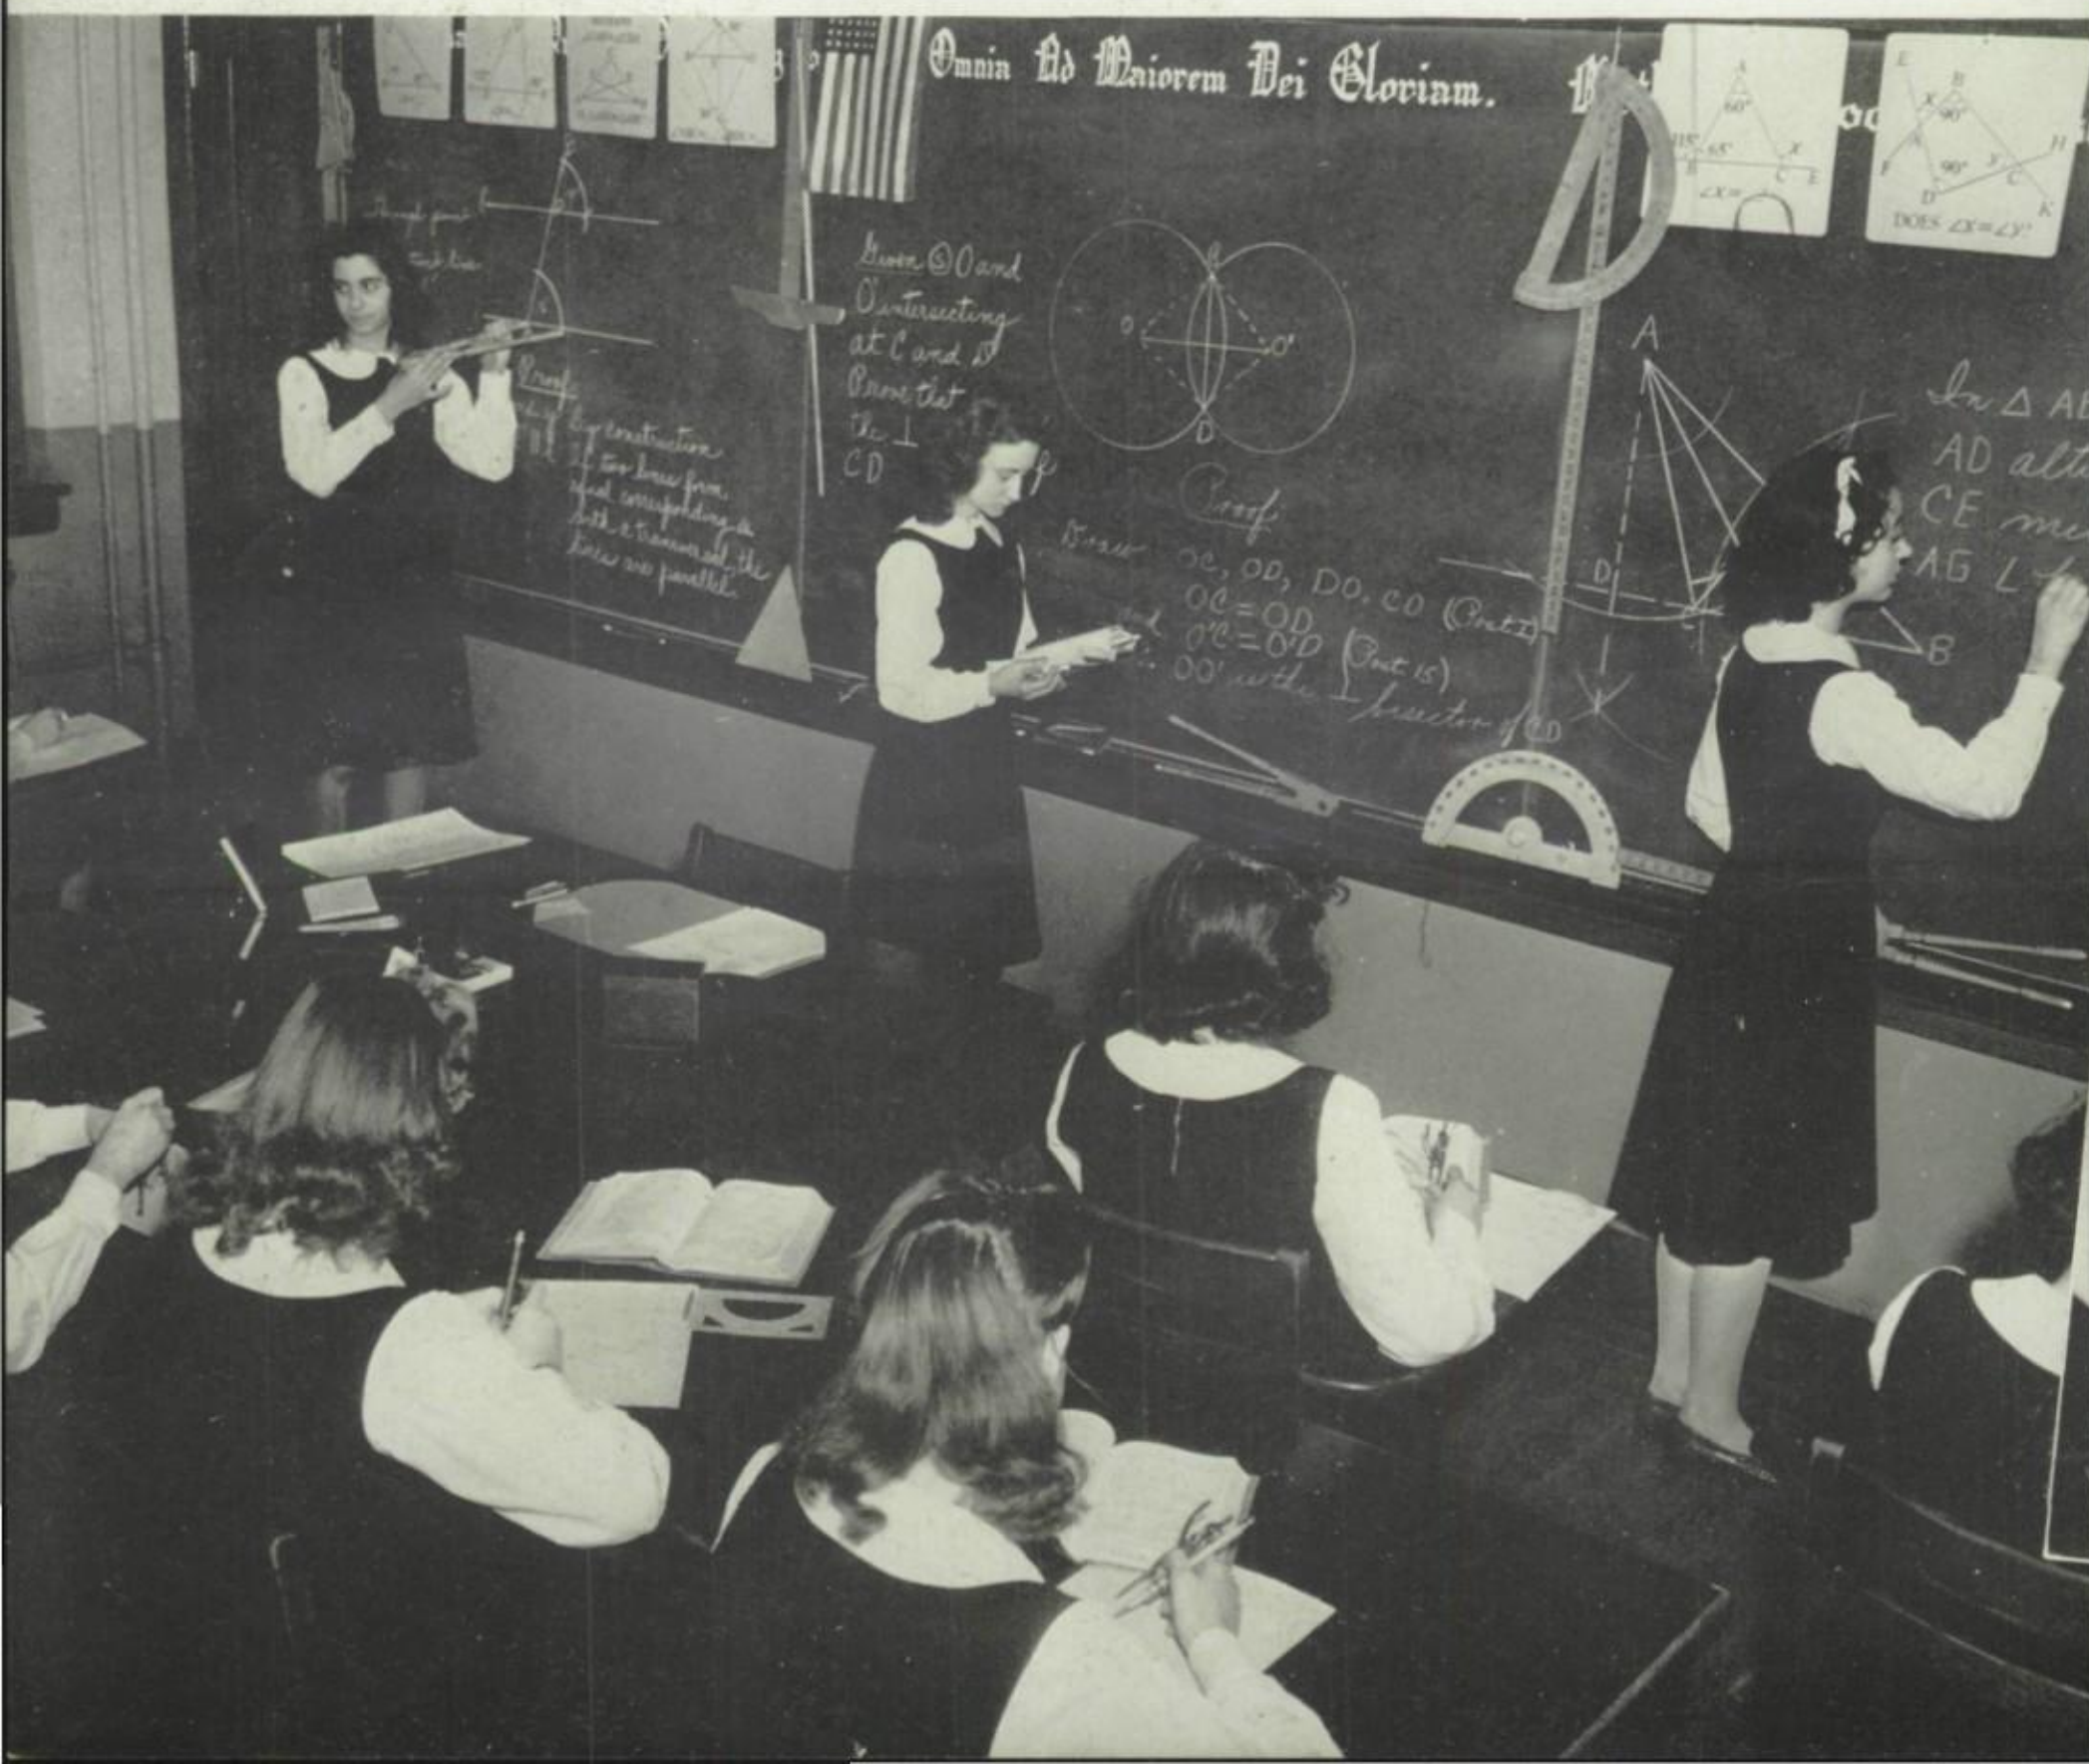

Sophomores learn how to manipulate the microscope in biology. Dolores DeFranco is seen examining a specimen of bread mold.

Sophomore Marie A. Walker presents the correct reception of Extreme Unction, while pointing to the board is Sarah Durkin.

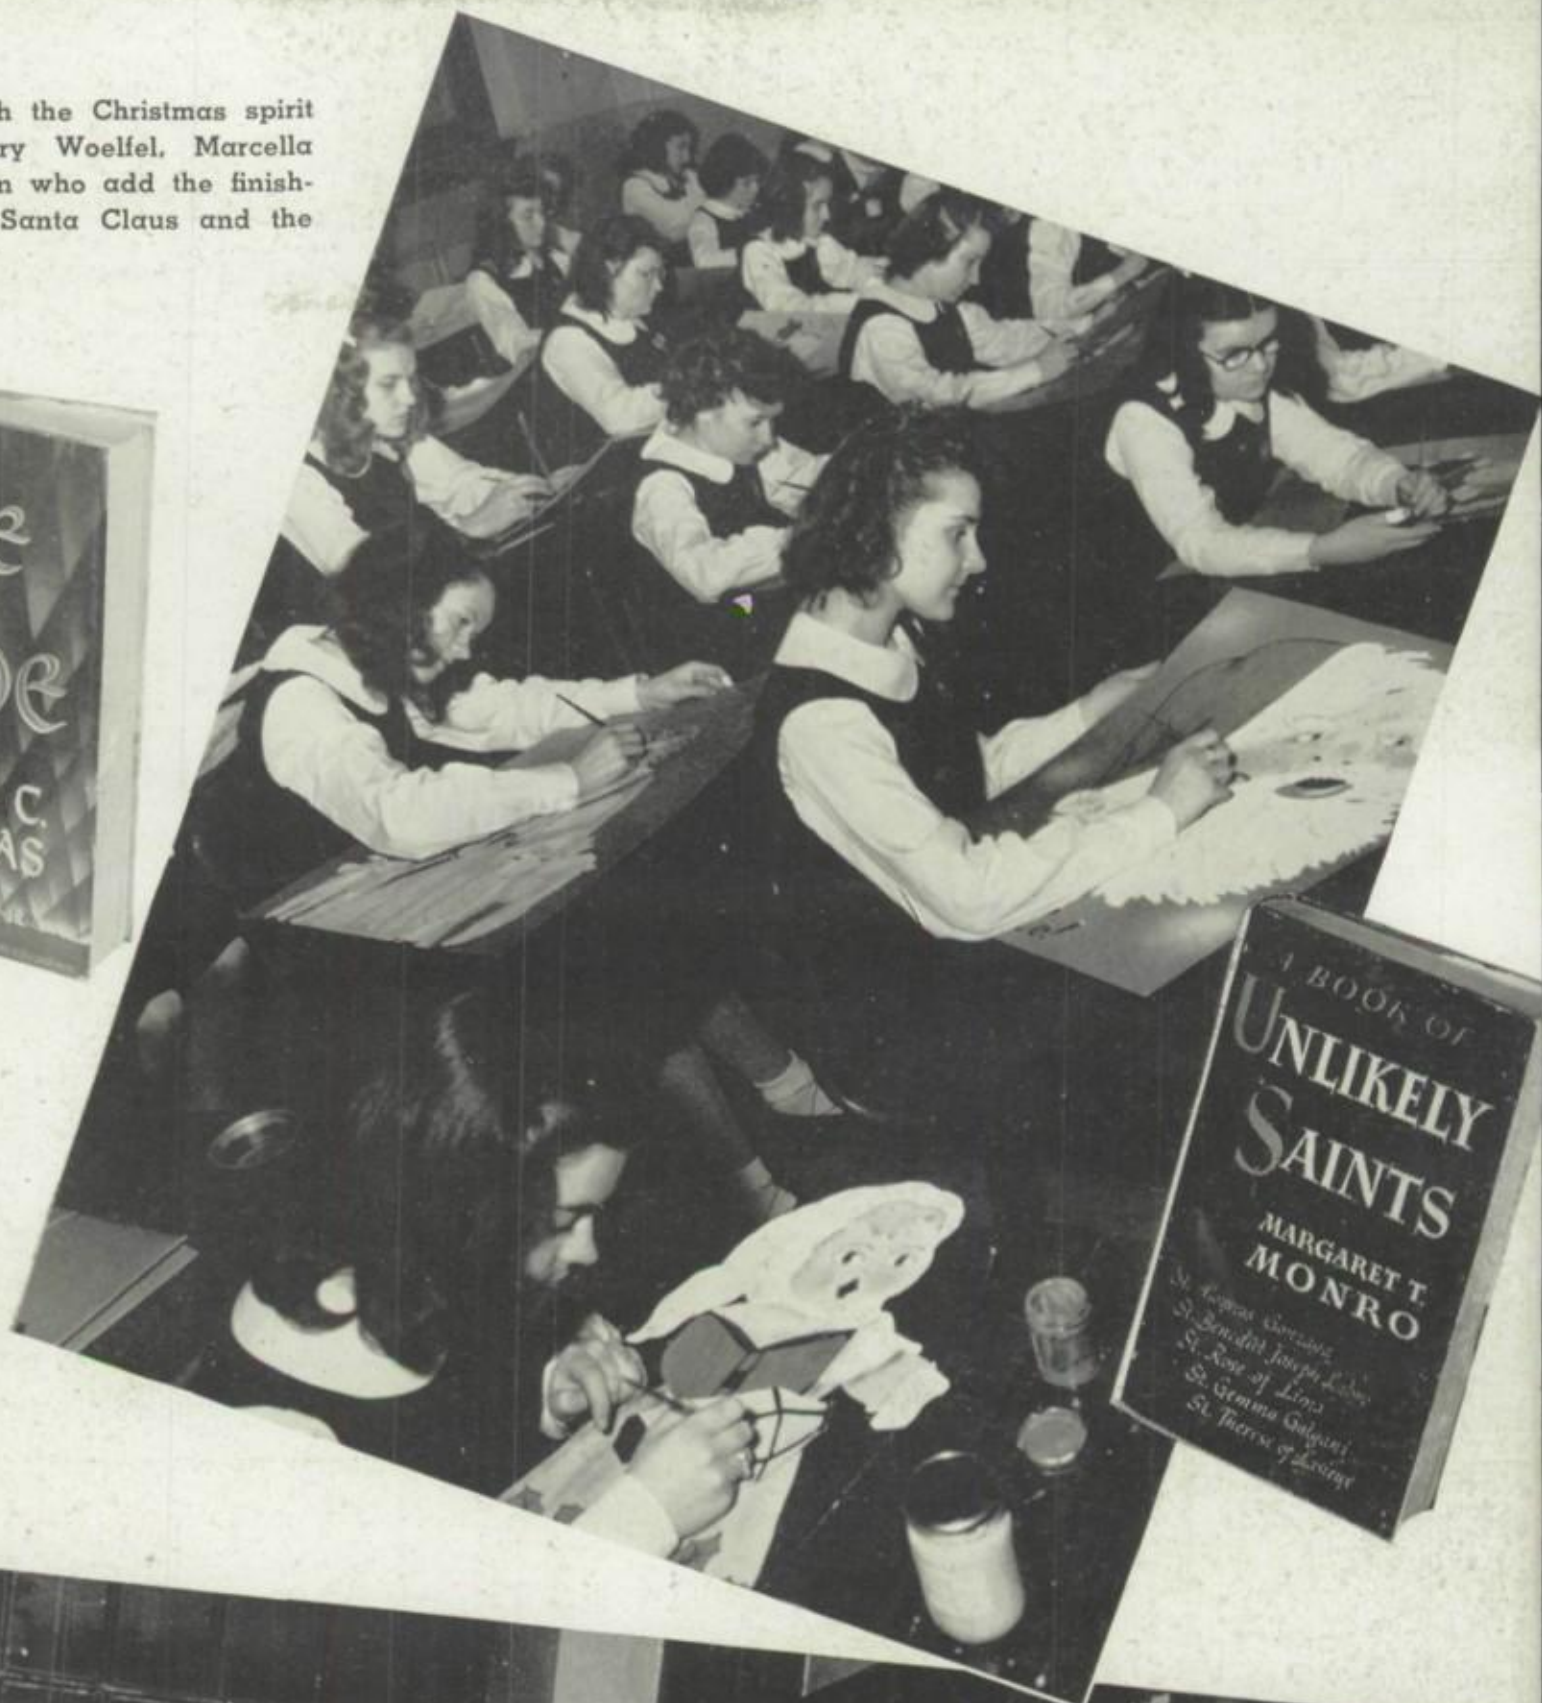

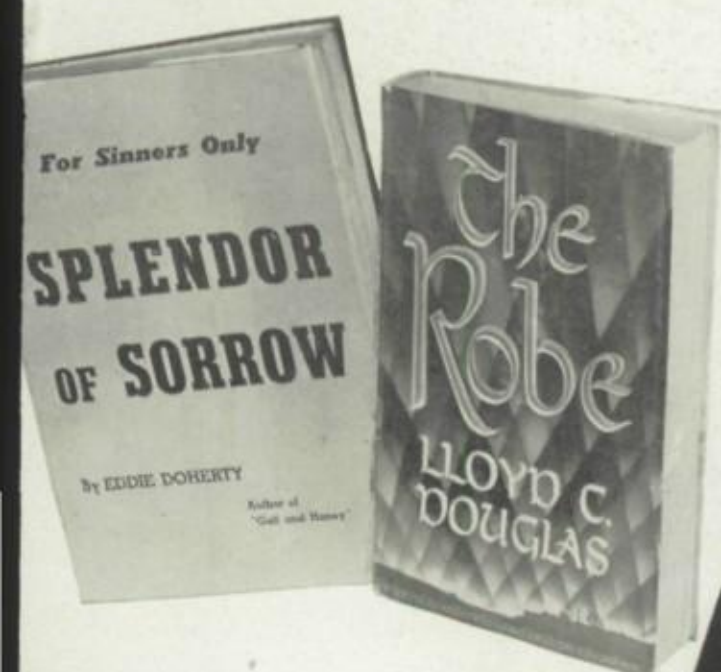

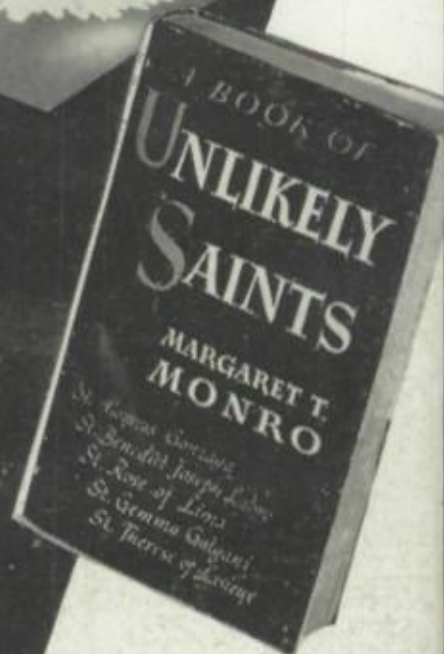

According to this picture sophomores like Helen Marie Brancato, Fay De Palma, and Antoinette Cuillo, have discovered the great advantages of a course in geometry which requires reasoning and thought and develops logic. Because of the war there is a need for students of geometry and many fields lie open to them. It's the golden opportunity for you, girls. Believe me, if the Egyptians could do it, so can our little Hallahan sophomores.

Well, well, it looks as though the Christmas spirit has taken possession of Mary Woelfel, Marcella Adomaitis, and Eleanor Cullinan who add the finishing touches to the posters of Santa Claus and the Christmas caroler.

The Juniors Near Their Goal

It is with a sense of anticipation that Hallahanites who have successfully completed the first two years of high school enter into the third year of studies as juniors. In the year vast opportunities are afforded that previously they were not eligible for. Since Pan-American relations have been encouraged, Hallahan lends her support by introducing Spanish. Our juniors have the choice of choosing Spanish I as an elective. Physics has been introduced even more recently than Spanish. Third year students who qualify are eligible for physics and also chemistry. Most of the girls taking the commercial course find their third year interesting because it is here that they take their first plunge into business subjects. A great deal depends upon how the junior progresses in stenography I. If, at the end of this year, she has proved herself capable in the field, she may be advanced into the transcription course the next year. Another important event in the school life of a junior is Junior Day. This day is especially set aside for the juniors and they sport their brown and gold emblems even more proudly than usual. It is in this year also that students begin to look forward to the wearing of the coveted red and white.

These juniors touch their toes as they cultivate grace and flexibility and store up an aftermath of aches and pains. Now, more than ever before, when the need of physical fitness is so vital to our nation's future. Hallahan is straining all efforts to keep her students fit. The benefits received are very abundant. If effort counts, Gloria Lotierza in the front row and Marie Fitzpatrick and Marguerite Vicario should be among the top ranking pupils.

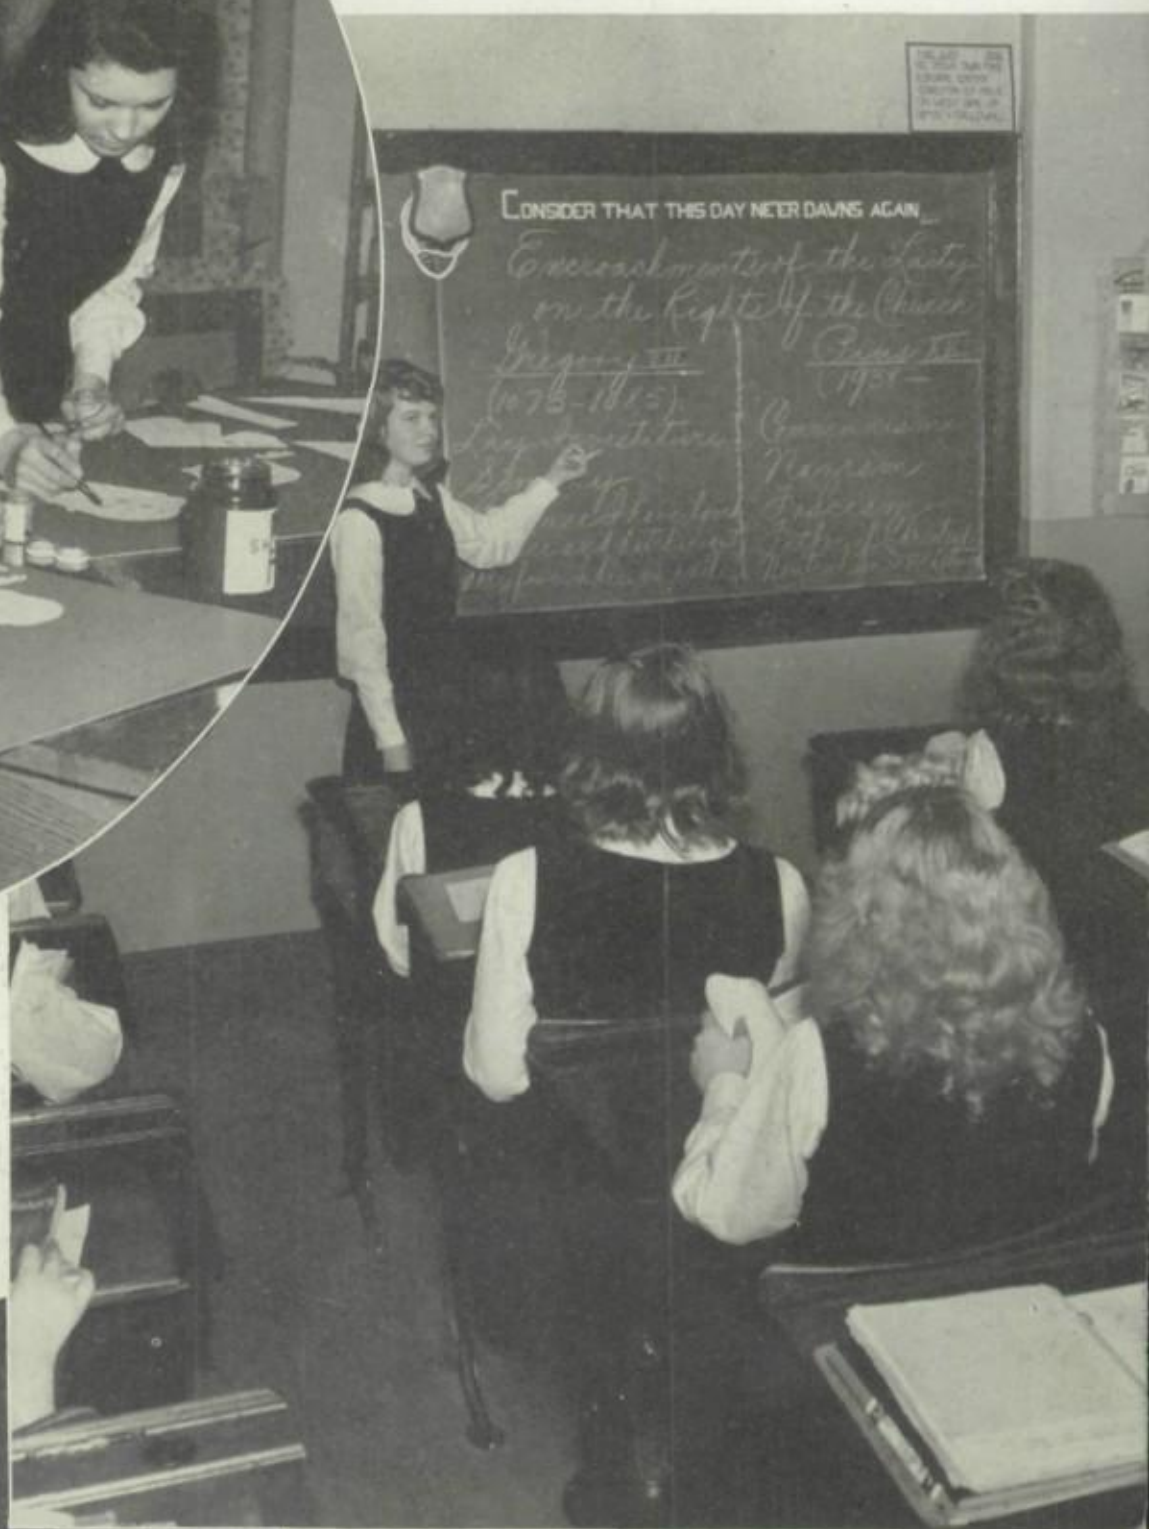

Now, in all the armed services of our country, an extensive program is being carried on to enable our men to enter battle equipped with better physical assets than those of any other nation. Learning how to care for the body in the proper way makes for a better citizen after the war. Learning to build and maintain health now will bear important results in the post-war era. This period will be one of the most tedious in history and we shall be required to yield extensive post-war services. Pictured here is a class of juniors being taught by Sister M. Canuta who stresses the need of healthy bodies for victory.

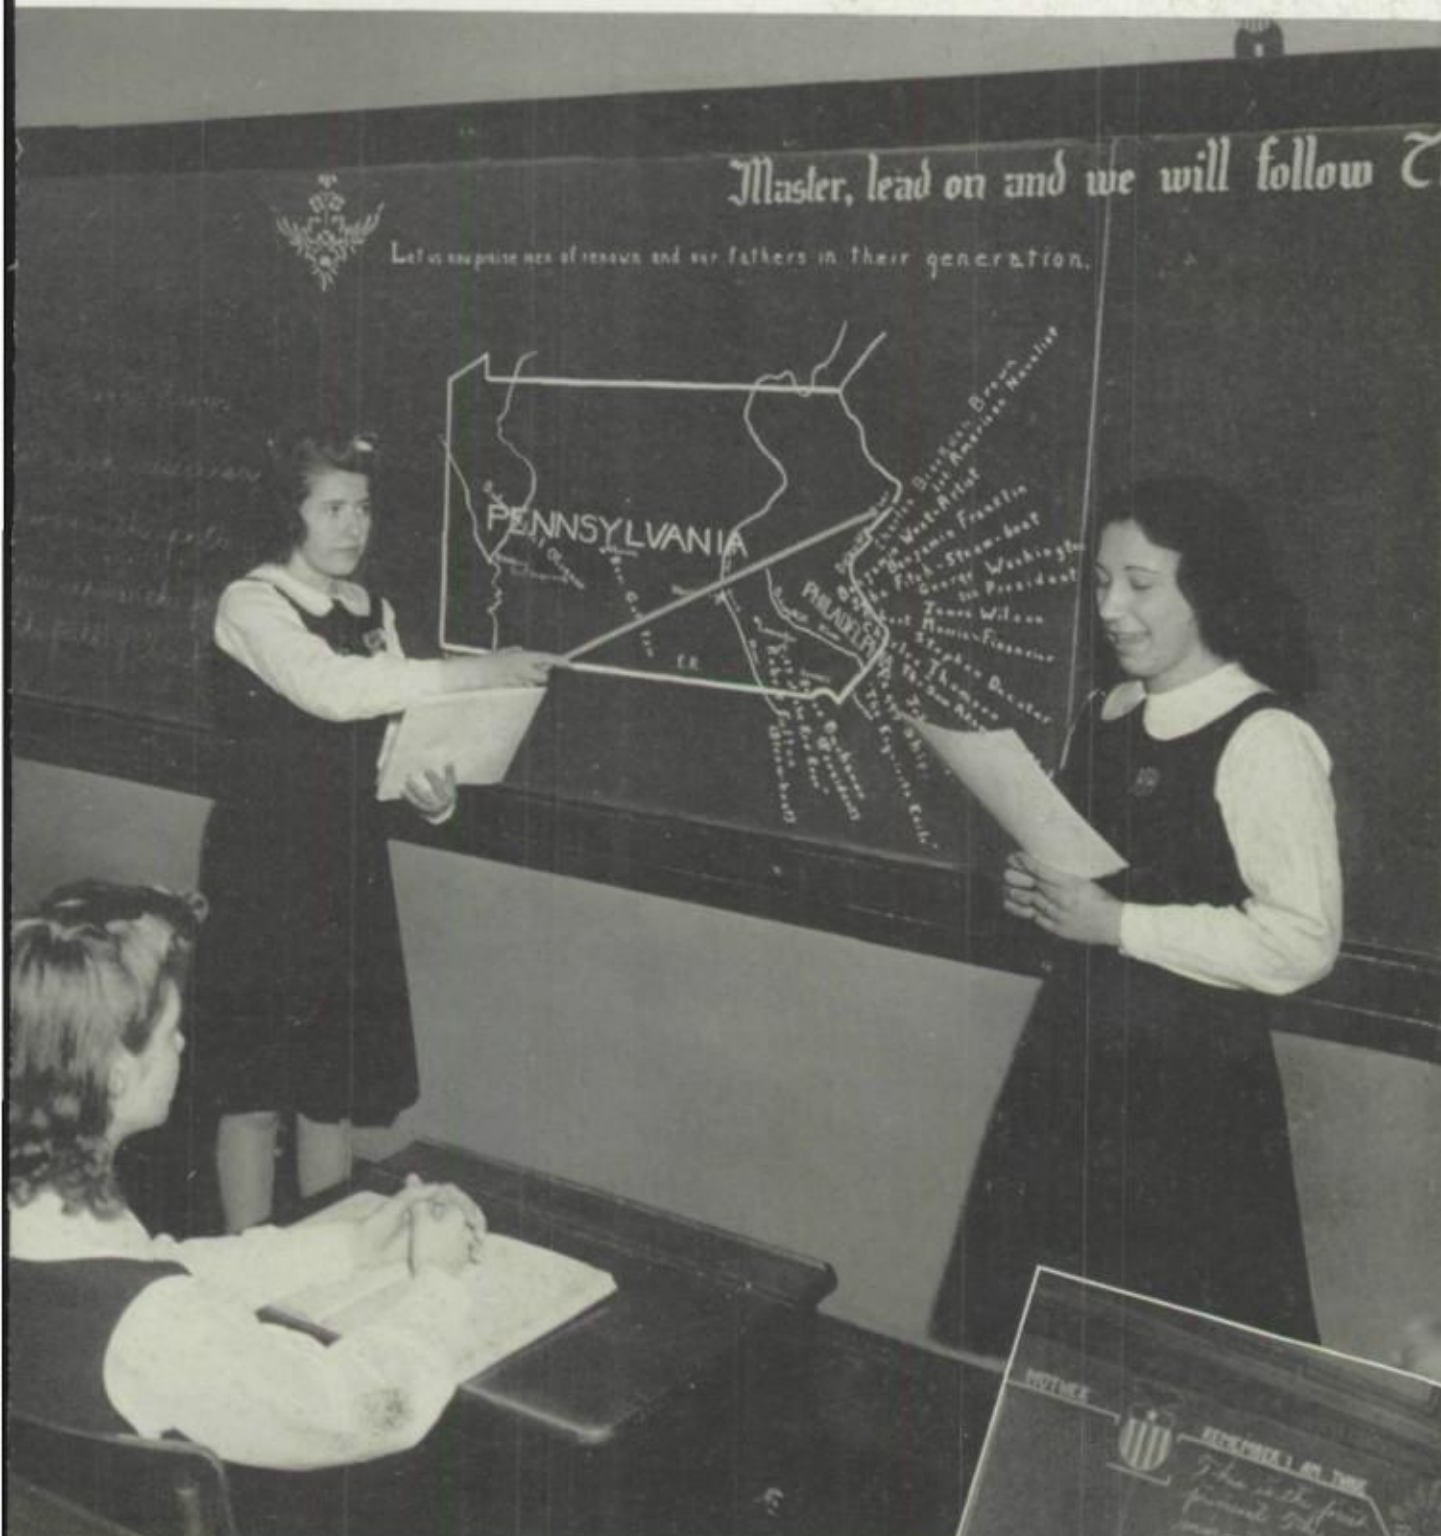

Enthusiastic junior artists, Immaculata O'Donnell, Anna Lamina, and Renee Le Marquand, work for the completion of cheery angel posters which helped to brighten the halls of Hallahan during the Christmas holidays. Note the skill with which they manipulate tools.

In Religion, the most important class at Hallahan, we find Rita Donahue and Marie Hunsicker contrasting two great men—Pope Gregory VII and Pius XII. Discussions like this lead to a greater interest and a deeper understanding of the truths of our Religion.

The French language above all other "romance languages" apparently holds untold mysteries for Junior Renee Le Marquand, who stands reflectively before a series of French sentences on the fascinating subject of the seasons. It is the tongue of a great nation.

Third year students include American History among their studies. Here leading Pennsylvanians are discussed by Anna Donner, who stands at the map, and Rosemarie Pinto. The chairman of the lesson is Ethel Tolke. The class gives its undivided attention to them.

Kathleen Hanlon, Shirley M. Garland, Nora C. Bonner, Catherine Heckman, and others watch attentively as Mary Mallon and Anna Tomeo explain the secrets of scansion. Example is "This is the forest primeval . . ." from the famous, beautiful classic, "Evangeline."

Juniors initiated into commercial studies learn the art of journalizing and typing accurately. At the board at the left are Alberta Paskevicius and Veronica Kolodgij. Seated, Theresa Maguire and Marie O'Brien are in Row I, and Lena Rudolph and Theresa Hanlon in Row II. At the right, the typists in the first row are Carmella Turella, Louise Tursi, Teresa Hanley, and Frances Iannotta. In the second row are Catherine Medrow, Eleanor Lilly, Marie O'Brien, and Margaret R. Crowe. The Transcription Course, given for seniors, will be open to those juniors whose rating in stenography and typing warrants their taking this course.

Juniors delight in Spanish program. Eleanor Rhoades, pointing to the words of "God Bless America" on the board, leads the class in song. Gertrude Leahan and Gloria Di Lullo look very charming in their Spanish shawls. Gloria Leggiere, wearing a decorative mantilla, gives the festive scene the finished touch.

Seniors — so soon!

The last year at Hallahan brings a wider and more varied curriculum. The senior continues her way along in either the academic or the commercial course. Her only required subjects are fourth year religion, apologetics, and the further study of English grammar and literature. She usually perseveres in at least one language—Latin, French or Spanish. And somehow she survives trigonometry, solid geometry or advanced algebra. The principles of good citizenship are taught her by the study of national problems; she may choose modern European history instead. Since science is so essential today a senior usually chooses either chemistry or physics. If she is artistically inclined she may take vocational art or the newly added mechanical drawing. When she is musically inclined she will choose as her last major music. The senior may also be enrolled in the homemaking courses, food and clothing. Business classes are decidedly popular.

Regina Mae Koob and Marie Carey, probable laboratory assistants in the employment of Uncle Sam, are preparing themselves to meet the demands of industry after the world conflict is ended. The process of fractional distillation which they are demonstrating is used in the refining of petroleum and in the manufacturing of industrial alcohol and volatile oils. Chemistry opens gates to tomorrow.

War has stimulated a keen interest in physics. Following a lapse of four years this science has been inducted into the Hallahan curriculum. It is studied by juniors and seniors. Pictured here is a representative from each year. A junior—Cecilia Kelly, and a senior—Bernice Appel, are examining Archimedes' Principle, the Flotation of Ships. The students are measuring the total of water displaced. This is equal to the weight of the ship itself. This principle is very important in shipbuilding. By it the designers can tell where the water line of the ship should be marked and just how much cargo can be carried.

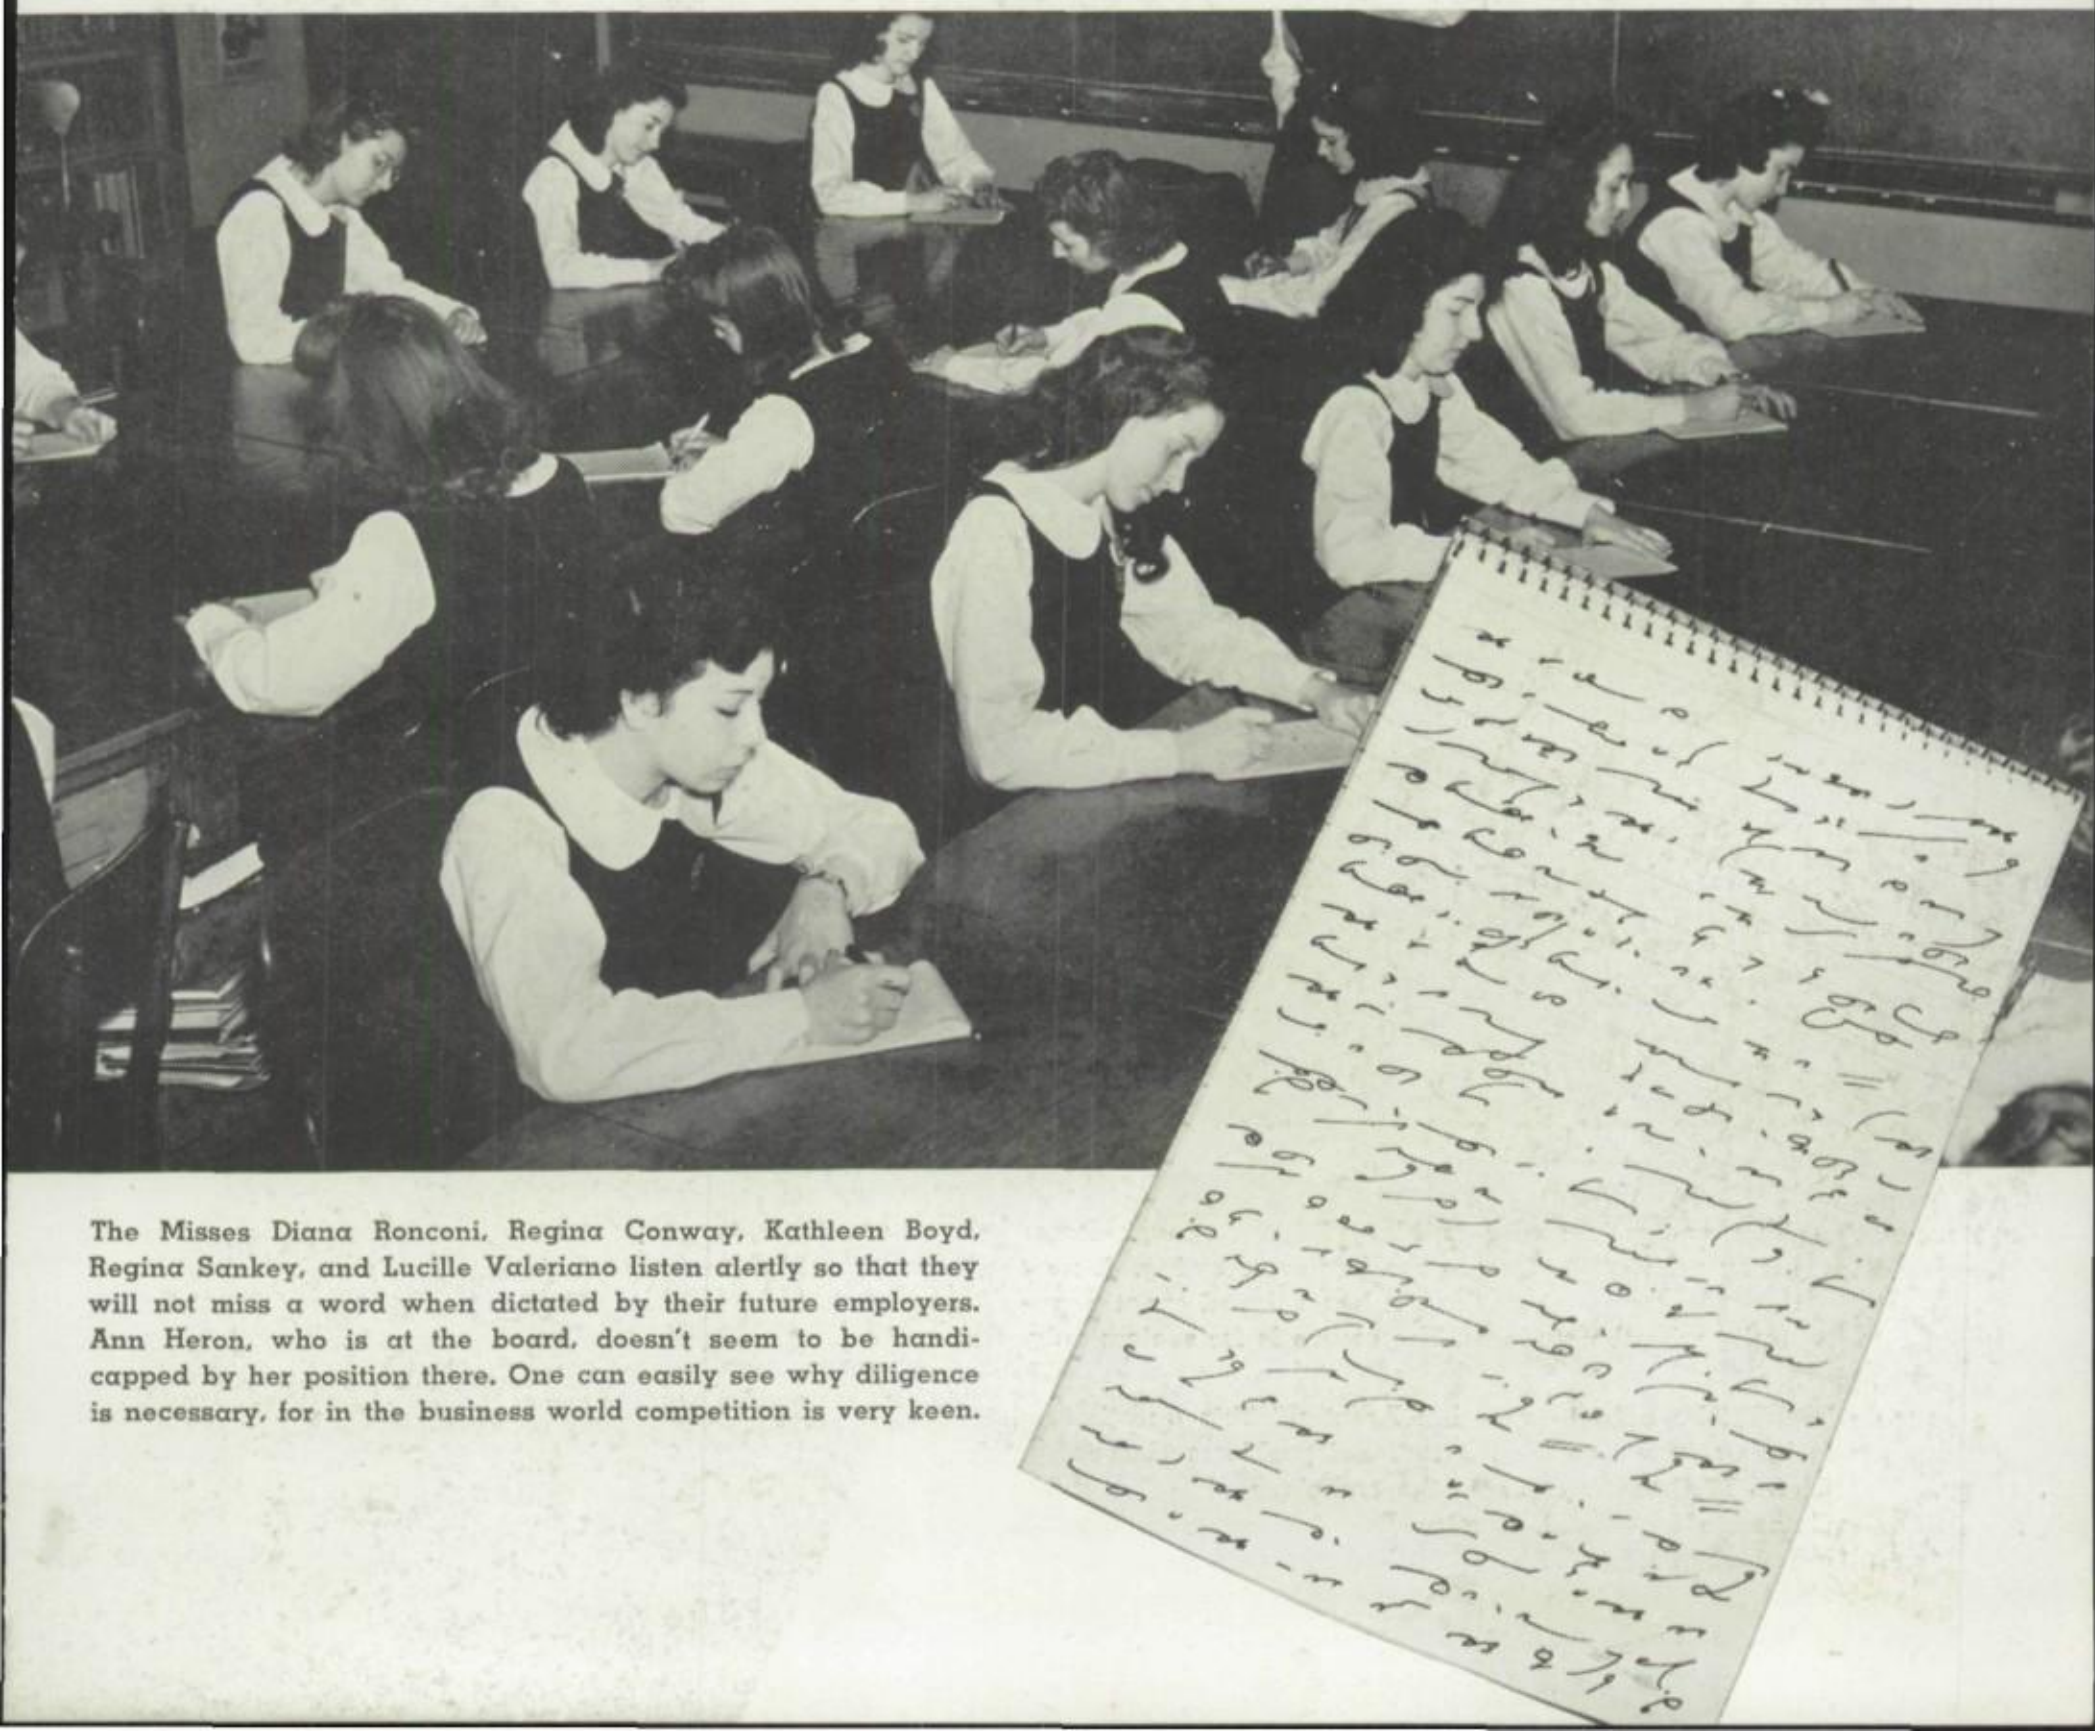

Pictured below are senior commercial students acquiring accuracy and skill in typing which will be valuable to them in their prospective positions. They are: Mary Ann Connelly, Gloria Grogan, Ann Griffin, Elizabeth Brawley, Margaret Collins, Rose Macarota, Dora Medora, Grace M. Kenny and Amelia Manone.

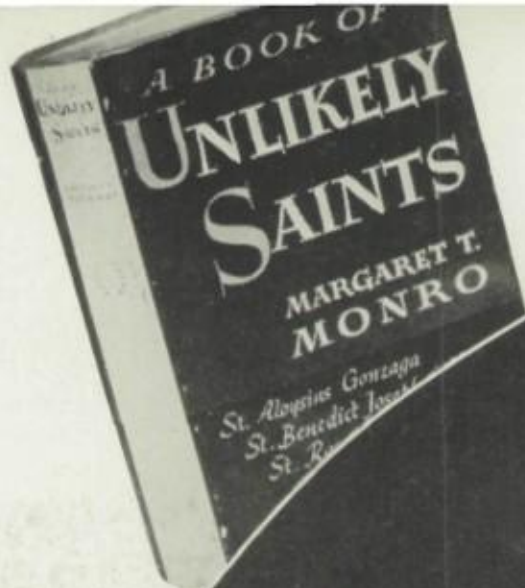

These secretarial students are being trained in the various office machines: Elizabeth McTamney and Mary Gibston, the comptometers; Mary Somers, the Calculator; Regina Lindline and Mary McLaughlin, adding machine.

While Catherine Lieber, Margaret Donlon and Michaelina Donata investigate to learn if their names are among the expert typists, Margaret Perry points out her discovery to her fellow students. The number of senior awards was high for '44.

The Misses Diana Ronconi, Regina Conway, Kathleen Boyd, Regina Sankey, and Lucille Valeriano listen alertly so that they will not miss a word when dictated by their future employers. Ann Heron, who is at the board, doesn't seem to be handicapped by her position there. One can easily see why diligence is necessary, for in the business world competition is very keen.

This energetic senior is Mary Ellen Cermack struggling with a problem in mechanical drawing. A new addition to the curriculum, it has enjoyed great popularity with the students. The course is for seniors only.

"Shall I be able to vote intelligently?" This question is being answered by the national problems classes. Claire McCrosson explains the technique of voting to Catherine McDonald. Bernice Delaney points to diagram while Elaine Aubrey follows proceedings on the chart. Dolores Oristaglio selects a choice on machine.

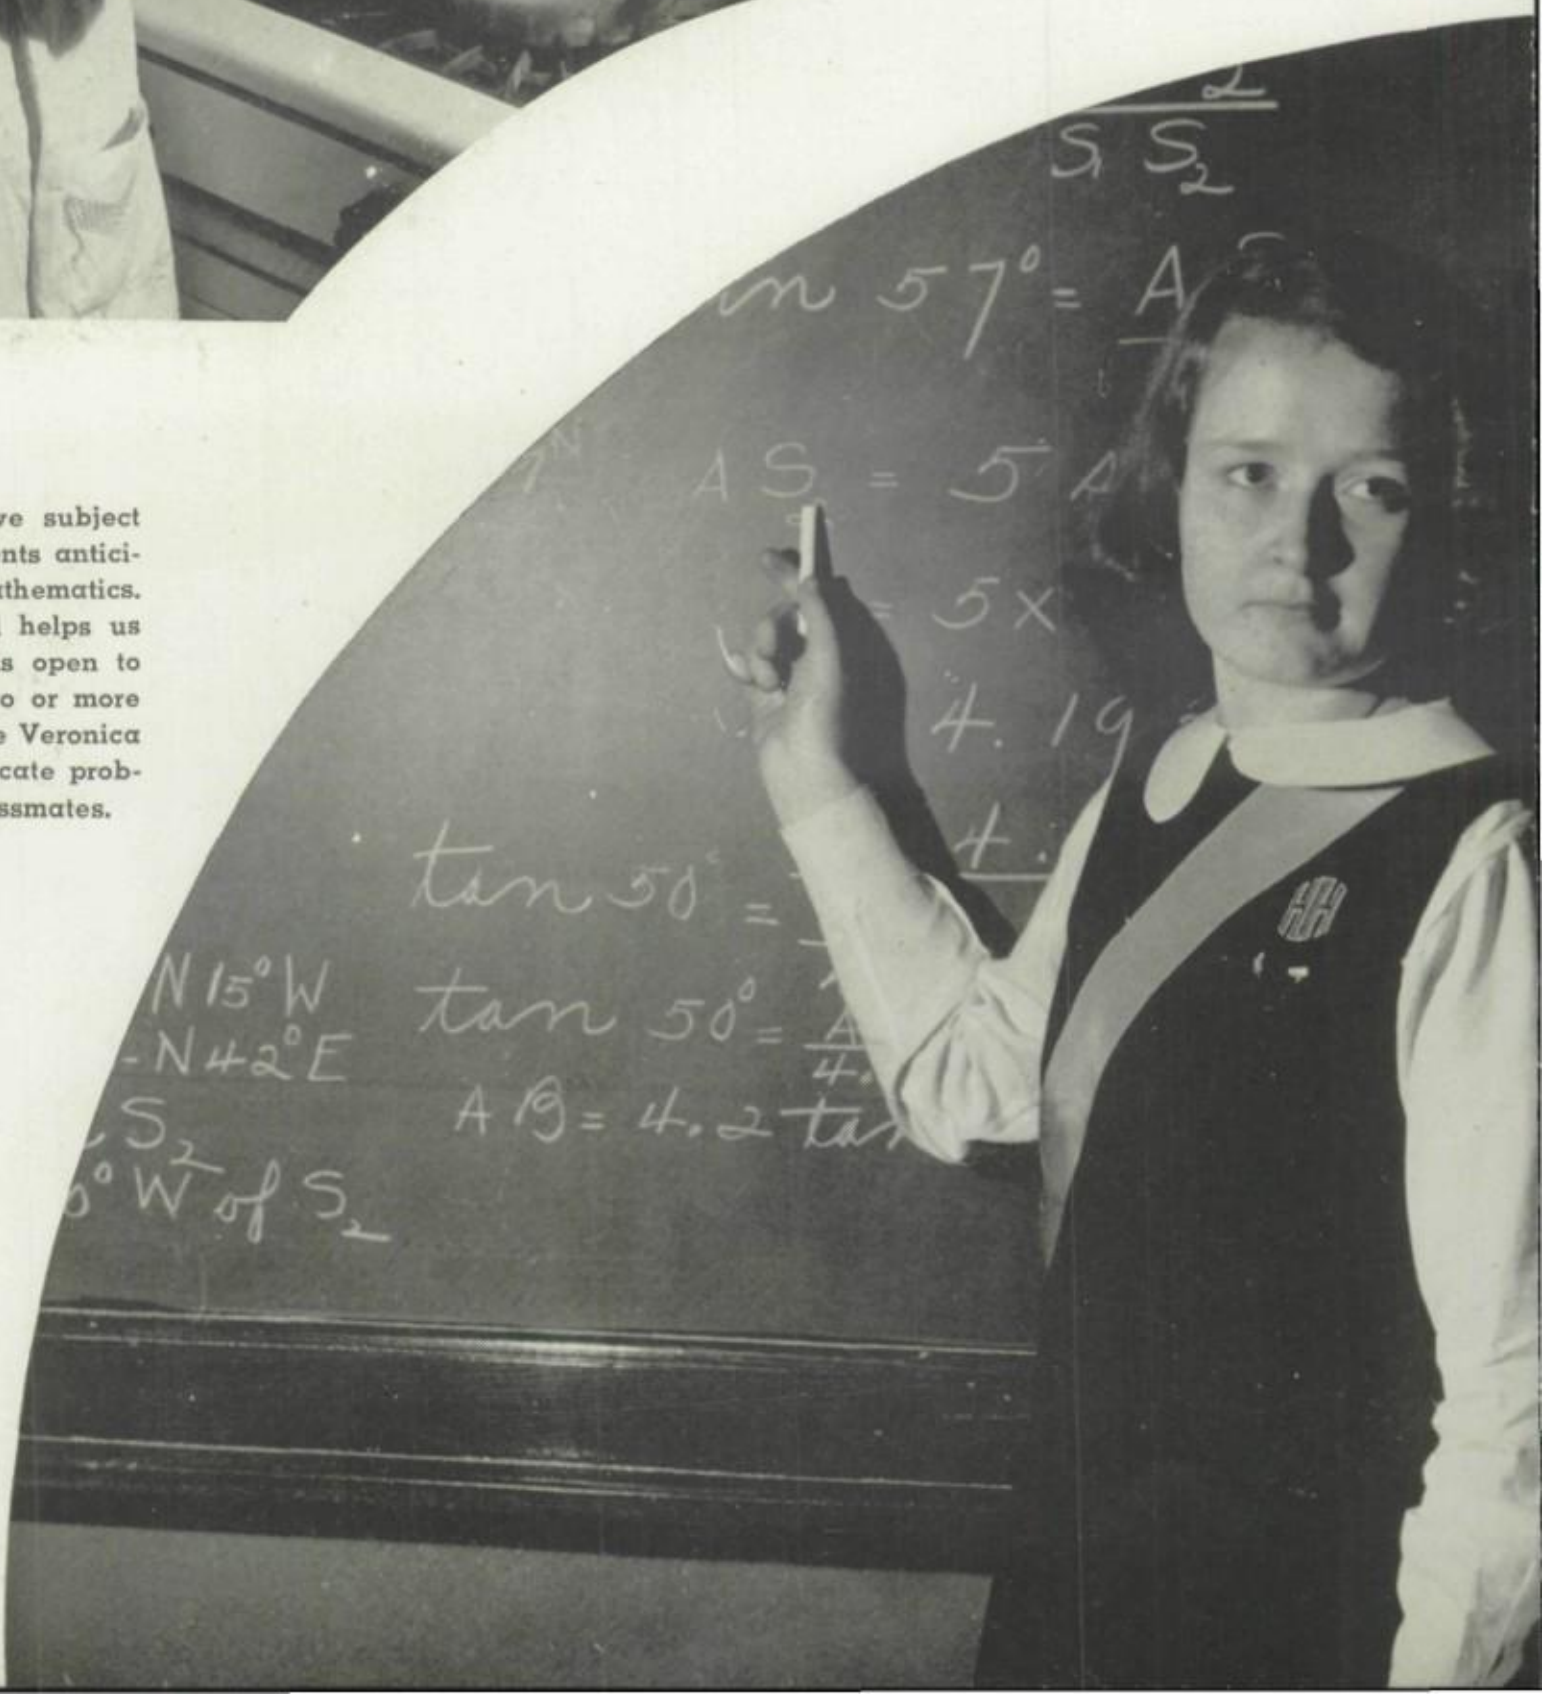

One of the most brilliant highlights of Senior English is Macbeth. Here, Mary Claire O'Keefe, Helen Masapollo and Marie McGrath dramatize one of the stirring scenes from Shakespeare's drama. The attention of the class belies the oft quoted statement: "There is no art to find the mind's construction in the face." There is!

The science of cooking attracts many students. Skill may be attained through practice and the girls are given every opportunity to master the art. Theresa Chmielewski is planning a savory dish. With culinary eagerness she adds crisp cabbage leaves. Theresa knows how to prepare an attractive meal.

Trigonometry is an elective subject undertaken by those students anticipating college or higher mathematics. It sharpens the mind and helps us to think more clearly. It is open to all those students with two or more years of mathematics. Here Veronica Cardwell explains an intricate problem to her attentive classmates.

Highly important training is sewing is offered by the Home Economics course. After basic training the girls take up needles and thread. Catherine M. McGarrigle has profited by her study. She is earnestly pressing the seams of her new creation. After they have been flattened the entire coat will be ironed and another stylish masterpiece complete.

While the ovens wait, these busy home economics students, Concetta De Vita and Helen McVay, mix up muffins in expert style. Concetta reflects soberly, "Let me see—I've put in the dry ingredients." Helen does her share by sifting flour with a practiced hand. The result will be light fluffy muffins enjoyed by all.

SO PROUDLY WE HAIL Our Graduate

After looking forward for four years to the time when she would don her cap and gown, the senior sees the day arrive. The future lies before her. The responsibilities and opportunities awaiting the graduate of 1944, because of the present emergency, will be greater than those of her predecessors. Whatever she may choose, whether it be business, college, or profession her service will be a better one because of her Catholic education in a high school, which, for almost half a century, has been turning out in Philadelphia, graduates ready to take their place in civic life.

These smiling Freshmen Rosemary Shultz, Anne Foley, Joan Crawford and Mary Malloy stop to admire the Freshman Day welcome posters on display in the first floor Hallahan. Senior councilors Bernice Delany and Bernice Appel, eager for an opportunity to make our little sisters welcome to Hallahan, stop with them.

The true spirit of Hallahan is the theme of Freshmen Day. This day is characterized not by the old-time fashion of initiation, but by the welcoming of the newcomers into the school. The seniors played hostesses while the freshmen, the guests of this festival, made their first social bow. The seniors were resplendent in red ribbons and much-written senior cards. The program displaying much talent, achieved several purposes. The Hallahan curriculum and tradition were attractively presented. The wide-eyed freshmen became acquainted with the various extra-curricular activities open for their participation, such as: basketball, hockey, swimming, and cheer-leading. Of importance, too, they met the Student Council. The program showed the ability of the art class who made their usual contribution of posters and stage effects. By the end of the day, the freshmen realized that they were part of Hallahan.

Freshman Day is Hallahan Day

Mary Santarelli, winner of the Freshman Day prize, receives this stuffed Teddy Bear from Council President Mary Strittmatter. Everyone witnessing it, including Teddy, was very much pleased at the occasion.

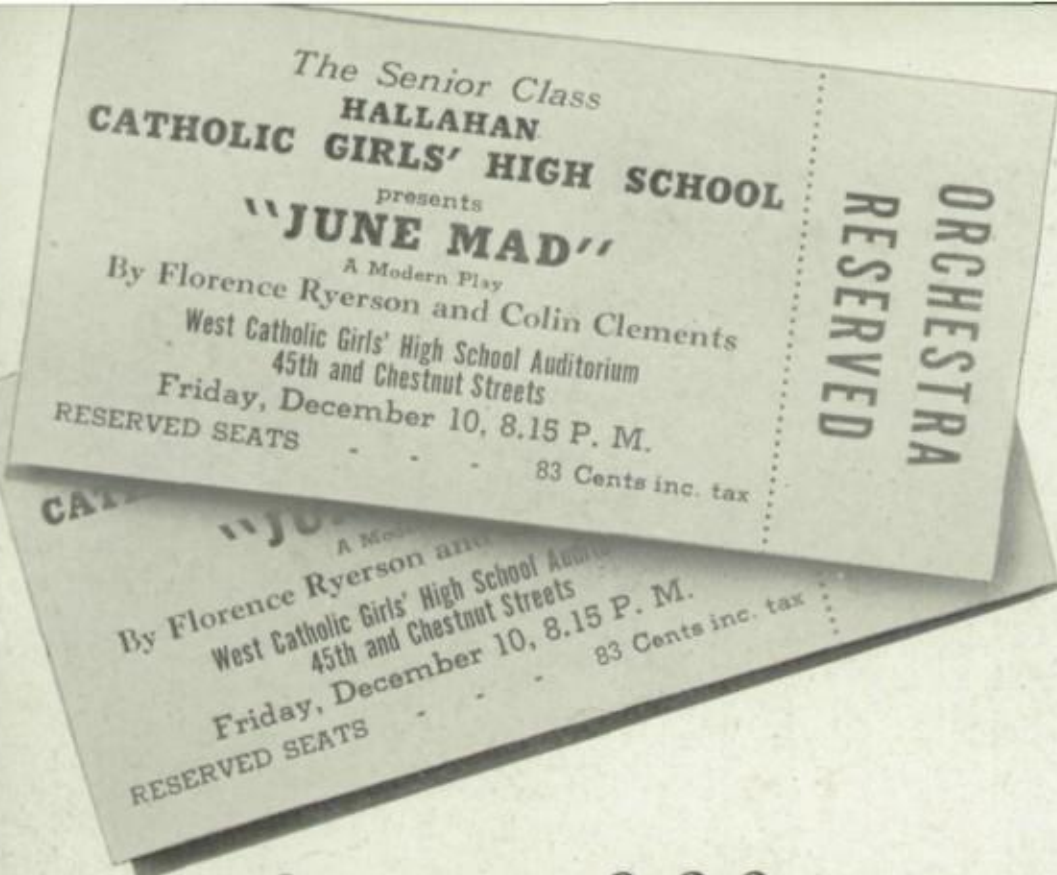

As they continue along Hallahan's Hall of Fame, Freshie and Frosh meet cheerleaders Dorothy Sheehan, Anne Delany, Mary Sabitini, Helen Flynn, and Eleanor Copeland who present to them, by song, our beloved mascot Mickey Mouse (Loretta Deiner).

Regina Conway is perhaps enjoying the calendar of important dates as much as Freshie (Marguerite Oakes) and Frosh (Jean Rose). Each month features a particular event but it seems that the date of the Hallahan Musical has caught their attention.

Our Lady of Hallahan provides a center for the finale of the Freshman Day Program, and Antoinette Martinetti, seen at the microphone, is singing the Star Spangled Banner while the American flag, school flag and the class flags are raised.

June Mad

Be merry and gay! Dance your cares away! That is the motto of this lively group which formed a conga line in the opening of act three as Philomena Fuschino played "Dad's Old Fashioned Root Beer". Joseph Glancey who suggested this dance is at the head of the line with Eleanor Flemming, Catherine Lieber, Walter Toth, Elizabeth Malloy, Marie Deegan, Alberta Little, Dorothy Fean, Clare Brill, Regina Mae Koob.

For many years the highlight of the senior year has been the presentation of its dramatic talent—the Senior Play. Although in other years the Senior Class chose a classical play to dramatize, the class of '44 broke away from this tradition by enacting a light comedy—"June Mad" under the capable direction of Miss Margaret Mary Kearney. For the first time in the history of Hallahan, boys portrayed the male characters. Roman Catholic High School and Southeast Catholic High School furnished this talent used in our decidedly popular play. From the moment the curtain opened until the finale the audience was amused with Penny in her dramatization of an irrepressible but a winning person. They were interested in Chuck and sympathized with him from beginning to end. Milly Lou, the neighborhood nuisance, who was continually "tagging" after Mervyn, captured the heart of each and every onlooker. While Mrs. Wood gave a more serious portrayal, Effie and Elmer, the hired help, added light touches of comedy throughout the entire play. Many ridiculed Doctor Wood for his successive complaints but laughed at his sardonic humor. The last act brought satisfaction to the audience when Mr. Harris, a lonely father, finds new happiness when he and his son get together. In fact, the play of '44 and the cast will long be remembered.

"Touché! There! I got you!" shouts Penny (Alene Spohrer) as she and Chuck Harris (William Jones) continue their fencing in the Wood's living room. This is one of the many ways in which these two youngsters amuse themselves.

"Chuck's been found!" As these words echoed through the house the entire family rejoiced. Mr. Harris and Doctor Wood related the account of Chuck's accident in his glider while the group consoles Chuck.

For once we find Penny and Chuck on peace terms and perfectly contented. Then again, what else could be more pleasing than someone bringing you an ice cream cone—maple nut at that! Although Penny is trying her best to act grown-up, there are a few times throughout the play when she forgets herself and gives in to her childish emotions. This is one of the times.

As Penny stands in the living room, done up in her "three-alarm fire" dress and Woolworth embellishments, she utters these words, "Forever, dear love—for ever and ever." Before she again says her speech she gives a double hitch to the bodice of her dress. Penny now feels that she is no longer a child. This scene caused much laughter in the audience.

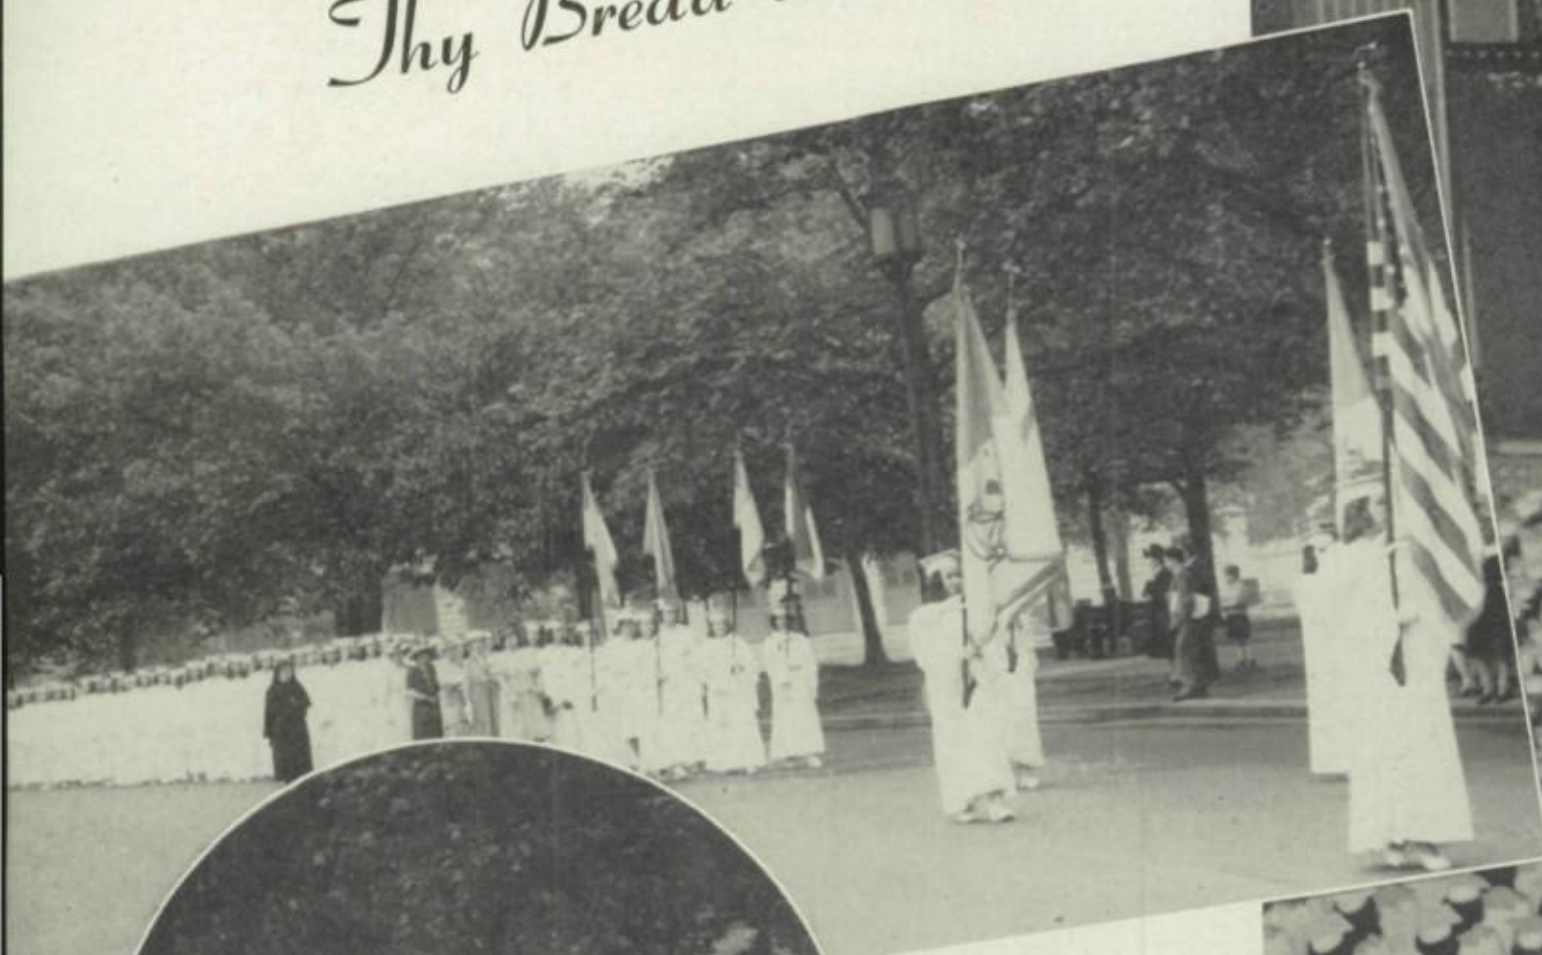

The Class of '44 will long remember the evening of October 26, 1943, the night of its Fall Formal. Although the weather was inclement, undaunted seniors smiled charmingly and danced at the Warwick Hotel. A very special attraction distinguished this year's Prom from the preceding ones—the number of servicemen present. The Navy was especially popular, as can be seen by the picture above in which the sailor is surrounded by a group of admiring Hallahan misses. Among the highlights of the dance, as shown in the above pictures, were Monsignor Bonner and his associates, together with the chaperons, our charming dance committee, and receiving line. October 26 is the night of nights in our "book of memories."

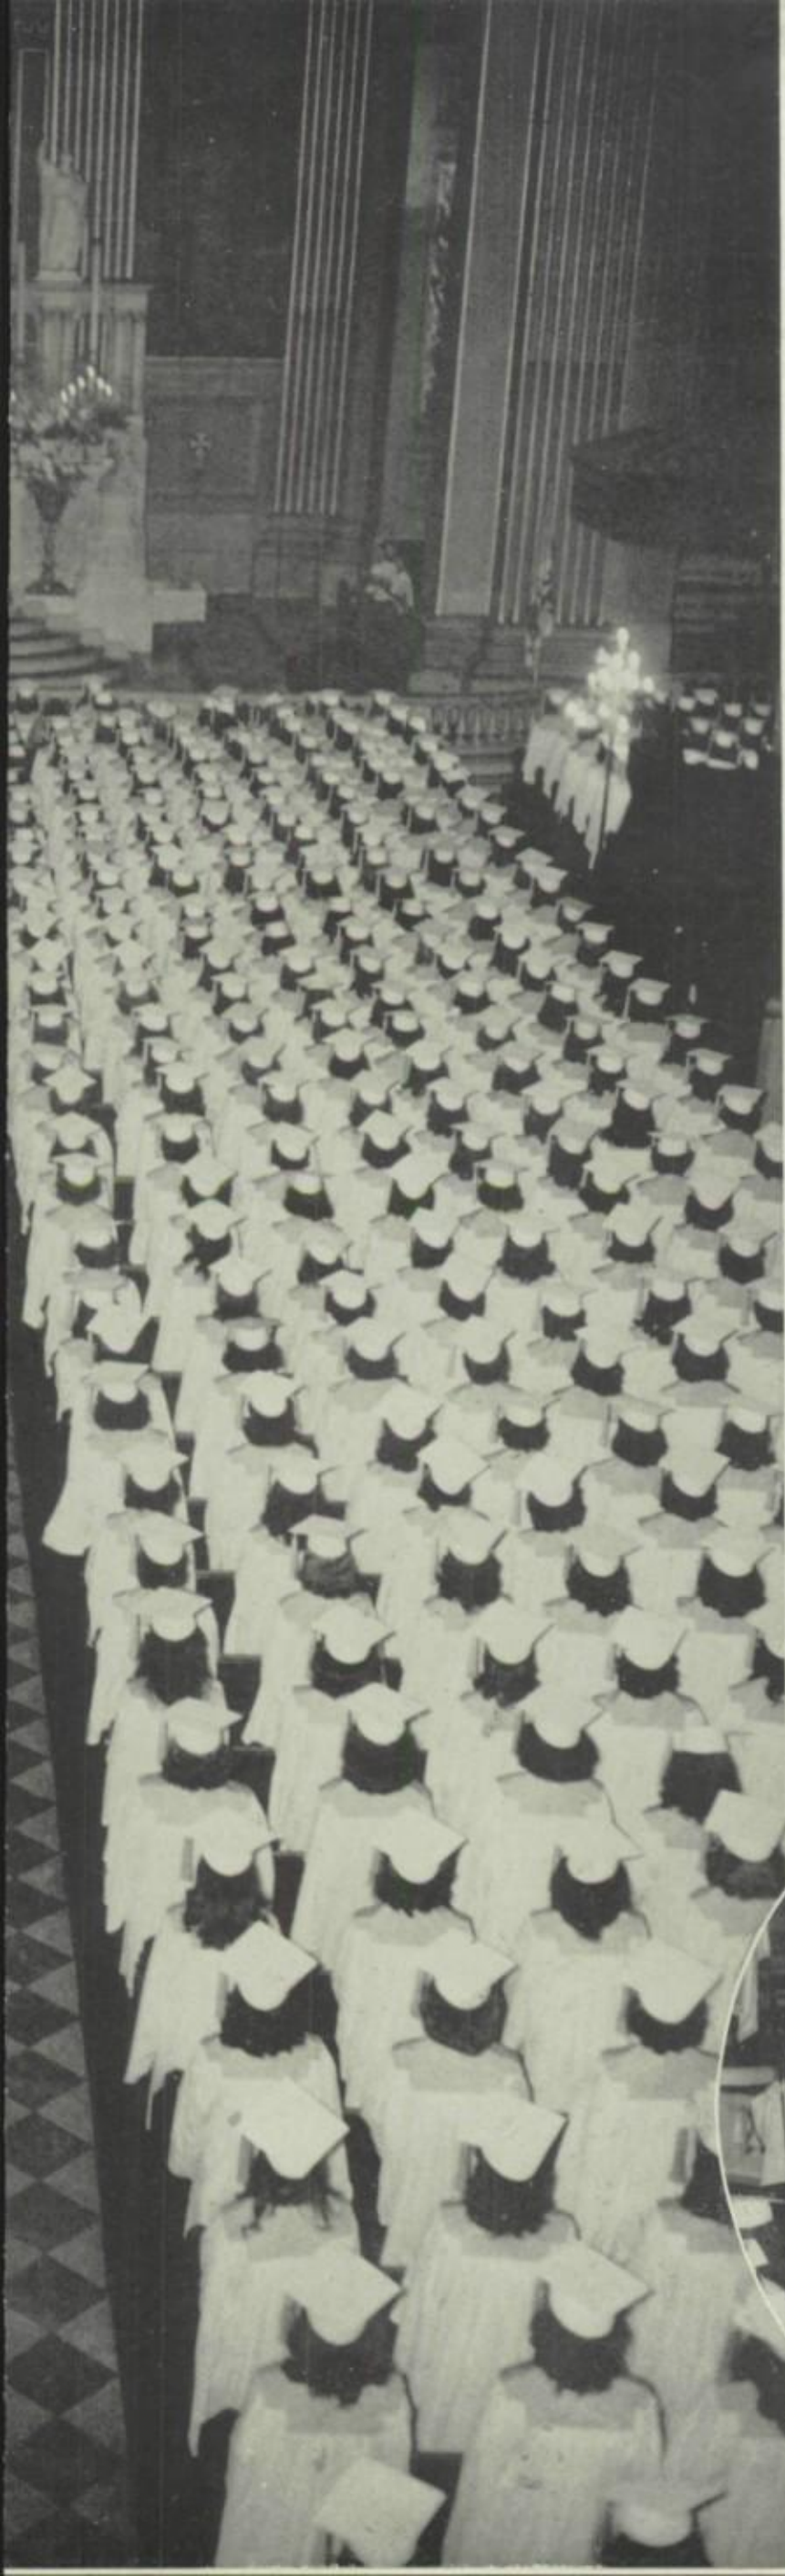

Thy Bread to Break

Lovely in white caps and gowns, seniors walk through historic Logan Circle behind colorful flags to attend their Baccalaureate Mass. For only the second time in the history of the school parents of students who had formerly graduated from Hallahan were included in the procession. The assistant superintendents distributed Communion to both parents and students.

The Baccalaureate Mass celebrated in the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul on May 30 was a memorable occasion for the class of '44. This day found the eager seniors wearing their caps and gowns for the first time. It was the last time they would hear Mass and receive Holy Communion in a body. Yet they were happy knowing that soon they would enter a new and more exciting phase of their life. After Mass was celebrated and a most inspiring sermon was delivered they genuflected at the signal of the flag-bearers and filed out of church. Then the procession amid the crowd of parents and friends once again marched through the Parkway to the school.

AN IMPRINT FOR GOOD ON TOMORROW

That Day in June

In former years the five Diocesan Catholic Girls' High Schools, Hallahan, West Catholic, Notre Dame of Rose Valley, Little Flower, and St. Hubert's held their own separate commencement exercises. 1943, however, brought a change in this schedule. For the first time the five schools combined for joint graduation exercises. This plan was so enthusiastically received that 1944 will bring the second anniversary of such a procedure. The camera has captured a breath-taking moment, when almost 5,000 girls stand at attention. Although, they are all clad in white gowns they are distinguished by the color of their respective schools found on the collars and tassels of the caps. The honor students and glee club are seated upon the platform, behind the principal speaker of the day. Other members of the student body are seated on the main floor of Convention Hall. Graduation brings with it both tears and smiles. Tears for the school days of one's life are passed. It brings smiles for it shows the successful completion of 12 years of work. Below many relatives and friends of the girls congratulate them.

Answer to "After Graduation What?"

The annual Hallahan Alumnae Breakfast was held once again at the spacious Bellevue-Stratford, which is situated at Broad Street and Walnut Street. The affair was well attended. Members of the alumnae first assisted at Holy Mass and received Holy Communion at the Cathedral, before going to the Bellevue. The president of the alumnae, Mrs. Dolores Kane Deviney, introduced the toastmaster, Miss Ann Harrington, who in turn presented the various speakers to the audience. Members of the faculty attended and several distinguished guests were present. A few of Hallahan's senior blue ribbon girls sold bonds and stamps after the breakfast. It was evident from their loyal support that the alumnae is interested in projects sponsored by Alma Mater.

Msgr. John J. Bonner, spiritual director, delivered the principal address at the annual breakfast. Monsignor's topic concerned education and the responsibilities of parents in the proper training of American children.

A pleasant and intriguing feature of the entertainment given after the breakfast at the Bellevue was presented by Dr. Jeno Donath, Hallahan's orchestra conductor.

SO PROUDLY WE HAIL Our Hallahanite

Hallahan offers activities for every type of talent and interest. The annual retreat finds students deep in prayer. Laughter and excitement fill the gym during a basketball game. Swimming, hockey, and other sports make the body strong and the mind alert. With their extra energy the girls take advantage of the various clubs and their interests. They prove their dramatic ability when the curtain rises for the senior play. We see them taking pride in the publications, orchestra, glee club, and band. Seniors are most charming at their prom. Musicians bow in their annual festival. All in all, the activities' program is varied.

Experience for Victory

In these hectic days when the armies of every nation are pitted against each other for superiority in the post-war world, the Student Government Association has the gigantic task of molding in its students a respect for authority and a sense of responsibility necessary to future citizens of democracy. Student participation in school government was introduced into Hallahan in 1926. Ever since, it has been an inseparable part of the Hallahan students' traditions. Through participation in school government, students learn to recognize and distinguish necessary qualifications for leadership and reliability through election of their officers. Student government also aids greatly the student officer because it gives her a very deep understanding of the problems of her fellow students. Student government is only a beginning, but if it is carried to its logical end, Catholic education may add more glory to its lustrous name.

In October, 1943, the installation of the officers of the student government of Hallahan took place. Monsignor John J. Bonner officiated at the impressive ceremony. The Hallahan band was also present at the installation.

The audience was composed of the senior students and faculty members. The few words delivered by Monsignor Bonner at the end of the ceremony became a guiding light for us during the past school year.

HOME ECONOMICS

Shown here are pictures of some students who are taking the Home Economics Class which is presented at Hallahan. These girls are wearing the clothes which they themselves created. The students, who can model their own designs, feel more encouraged to put forth their best efforts for the perfection of the dress, hat, coat, apron, or whatever it may be. Ellen Mele, shown standing in the group picture, is wearing the ensemble which she made. Ellen is surrounded by Grace DiPietro, Catherine McGarrigle, Margaret Griffin, Mary Strigari, Anne Burke, and Josephine Valloreo. The girls in the other pictures include: Teresa McCleary, Edna Smith, and Alberta Littel, who represent the seniors.

FASHION

The Home Economics course includes such domestic arts as laundering, sewing, cleaning, and, of course, the way to a man's heart, cooking. In Hallahan, the students are given the opportunity and the actual experience of taking care of a model home. There are a living room where guests sometimes go, a dining room, a sewing room, kitchen, and laundry. All are fully furnished with modern luxuries and in the most convenient and comfortable way. Here, each girl taking the course is given full directions in the use of sewing machine, washing machine, ironing board, soap and water, broom and mop, pots, pans, and cook books. Every day each room is cleaned and put in perfect order by the students. The girls who are interested in sewing make many of their own clothes, such as their school blouses, dresses and gowns for different occasions, aprons and pinafores, and coats.

Sand Script Reports a Decade

Ever since 1933, "Sand Script" has been the official record of Hallahan activities. "Sand Script" is issued monthly and since its appearance has achieved the All-Catholic and All-American honors. In this picture, two senior journalists discuss the layout of the coming issue of the paper. They are comparing the present layout with that of the last issue. Other journalists are preparing the manuscripts, drawings, and pictures for the paper. Mary Sheehan is seated at the typewriter, looking at copies with Margaret Auble and Margaret McCafferty.

SENIOR JOURNALISTS:

Bernice Appel, Margaret Auble, Teresa Caroselli, Helen Cunnion, Michaelina Donato, Margaret Donlon, Gladys Estabrook, Elizabeth Grady, Catherine Hanlon, Anne Heron, Louise Hodson, Marcella Hunsberger, Marie Lavalla, Margaret McCafferty, Marie A. Murphy, Mary Sheehan, Mary Strittmatter, Giovina Troilo, Rita Walsh.

JUNIOR JOURNALISTS:

Anna Becker, Julia Carey, Adele Carr, Elizabeth Danz, Dorothy Deluk, Geraldine Greener, Therese Haines, Alice Lyman, Rosalie Manning, Regina Marsico, Helen Marzin, Margaret McCrossin, Agnes McGuinn, Catherine and Helen Munn, Stella Murphy, Elizabeth Norkis, Jean O'Hara, Marie O'Hara, Gloria Ramp, Ione Stone, Eva St. Pierre, Anna Tomeo, Joan Wade, Frances Walker, Marie Ziccardi.

Busily pasting the dummy together are Bernice Appel, Margaret Donlon, and Anne Heron. This is the outlined plan of the paper before it is returned to the printer. All work on the dummy is quickly completed.

Four industrious junior newswriters, Elizabeth Norkis, Regina Marsico, Anna Becker, and Marie O'Hara, are counting and folding newspapers to be sent all over America. "Sand Script" finds a welcome in many army camps as well as in many schools near and far.

Another group of senior journalists compare written texts with "Sand Script." Seated at the table are Marie Murphy, Anne Tunney, Marcella Hunsberger, Michaelina Donato. Standing are Elizabeth Grady and Rita Walsh. Every article for "Sand Script" is checked.

"Here Is the Book Wherein

"Silver Sands" is the official literary publication of Hallahan. It first made its appearance in 1917 under the name of "Annual." In 1927, this was changed to "Silver Sands" and in 1931, it becomes a bi-annual publication. The literary edition is published in February, and it is open to students of all four years who wish to contribute. The book provides a medium through which the student can express her original ideas in features, short stories, poems or essays. A special feature of the book for the past two years has been the use of photography to illustrate poems. This year, a photograph will also be used to illustrate a short story. The guest editorial of 1944, contributed by a former graduate, and the streamlining of the mid-year edition are likewise distinguishing marks of "Silver Sands." The record book, in spite of difficulties imposed upon printing as a result of the war, has been able to maintain its high standards of telling life at Hallahan largely through pictures.

for action. Margaret McCafferty discusses copy with juniors Marie T. Mullen and Elizabeth Norkis. Joan Stephens neatly measures a photograph for future reference.

Talented senior artists Irene Nagurny, Marguerite Wintz, Eileen McKenna, and Alberta White are pictured discussing sketches for the literary publication of "Silver Sands."

In another part of the room, Margaret Zamko checks the count on lines for the yearbook with Catherine Hanlon. Aurora Malfitano keeps her own counsel as she smilingly observes the paper.

Directors All

Dr. Jeno Donath, new director of the orchestra, has also won fame in America as violin soloist. Under the direction of Mr. John Thoms the Hallahan band won acclaim at the school concert. Reverend John A. Murray the guest conductor of the glee club, won distinction at all performances. A pioneer in verse choir is Miss Margaret M. Kearney.

Encore!

From the opening of the school a small string ensemble practiced under the direction of Miss Nora Burke. In the fall of 1928 the acquiring of brass and woodwind instruments personnel completed the Hallahan Symphonic Orchestra, instructed by Philadelphia's best musicians. Mr. Benjamin A. d'Amelia, concert violinist, was the first conductor. Under his supervision of thirteen seasons we have seen our girls rise and bow to large audiences at the Academy of Music, the Robin Hood Dell, Town Hall, and Ocean City. In 1942 and 1943 with Mr. Felix Meyer as conductor the orchestra thrilled the audience in the First and Second All Hallahan Concerts. In 1944 it again attained its laurels under the baton of Dr. Jeno Donath. For its war time program the orchestra has made frequent appearances at army and naval hospitals.

Our Hallahan Glee Club is one that furnishes great delight to all who appreciate good music. It consists of a group of enthusiastic students who have won fame by their harmony.

Outstanding among their performances this year were the Hallahan and Combined Musicales. The Glee Club owes its musical success to its capable directress, Sr. Agnes Anita, S.S.J.

The Verse Speaking Choir is one of the many activities begun and furthered at Hallahan. Members of all four classes of the school are represented in the group. Under the direction of Miss Margaret Mary Kearney, the choir strives to attain perfection in speech through rhythm, and harmony in the interpretation of poetry.

Long a Leader

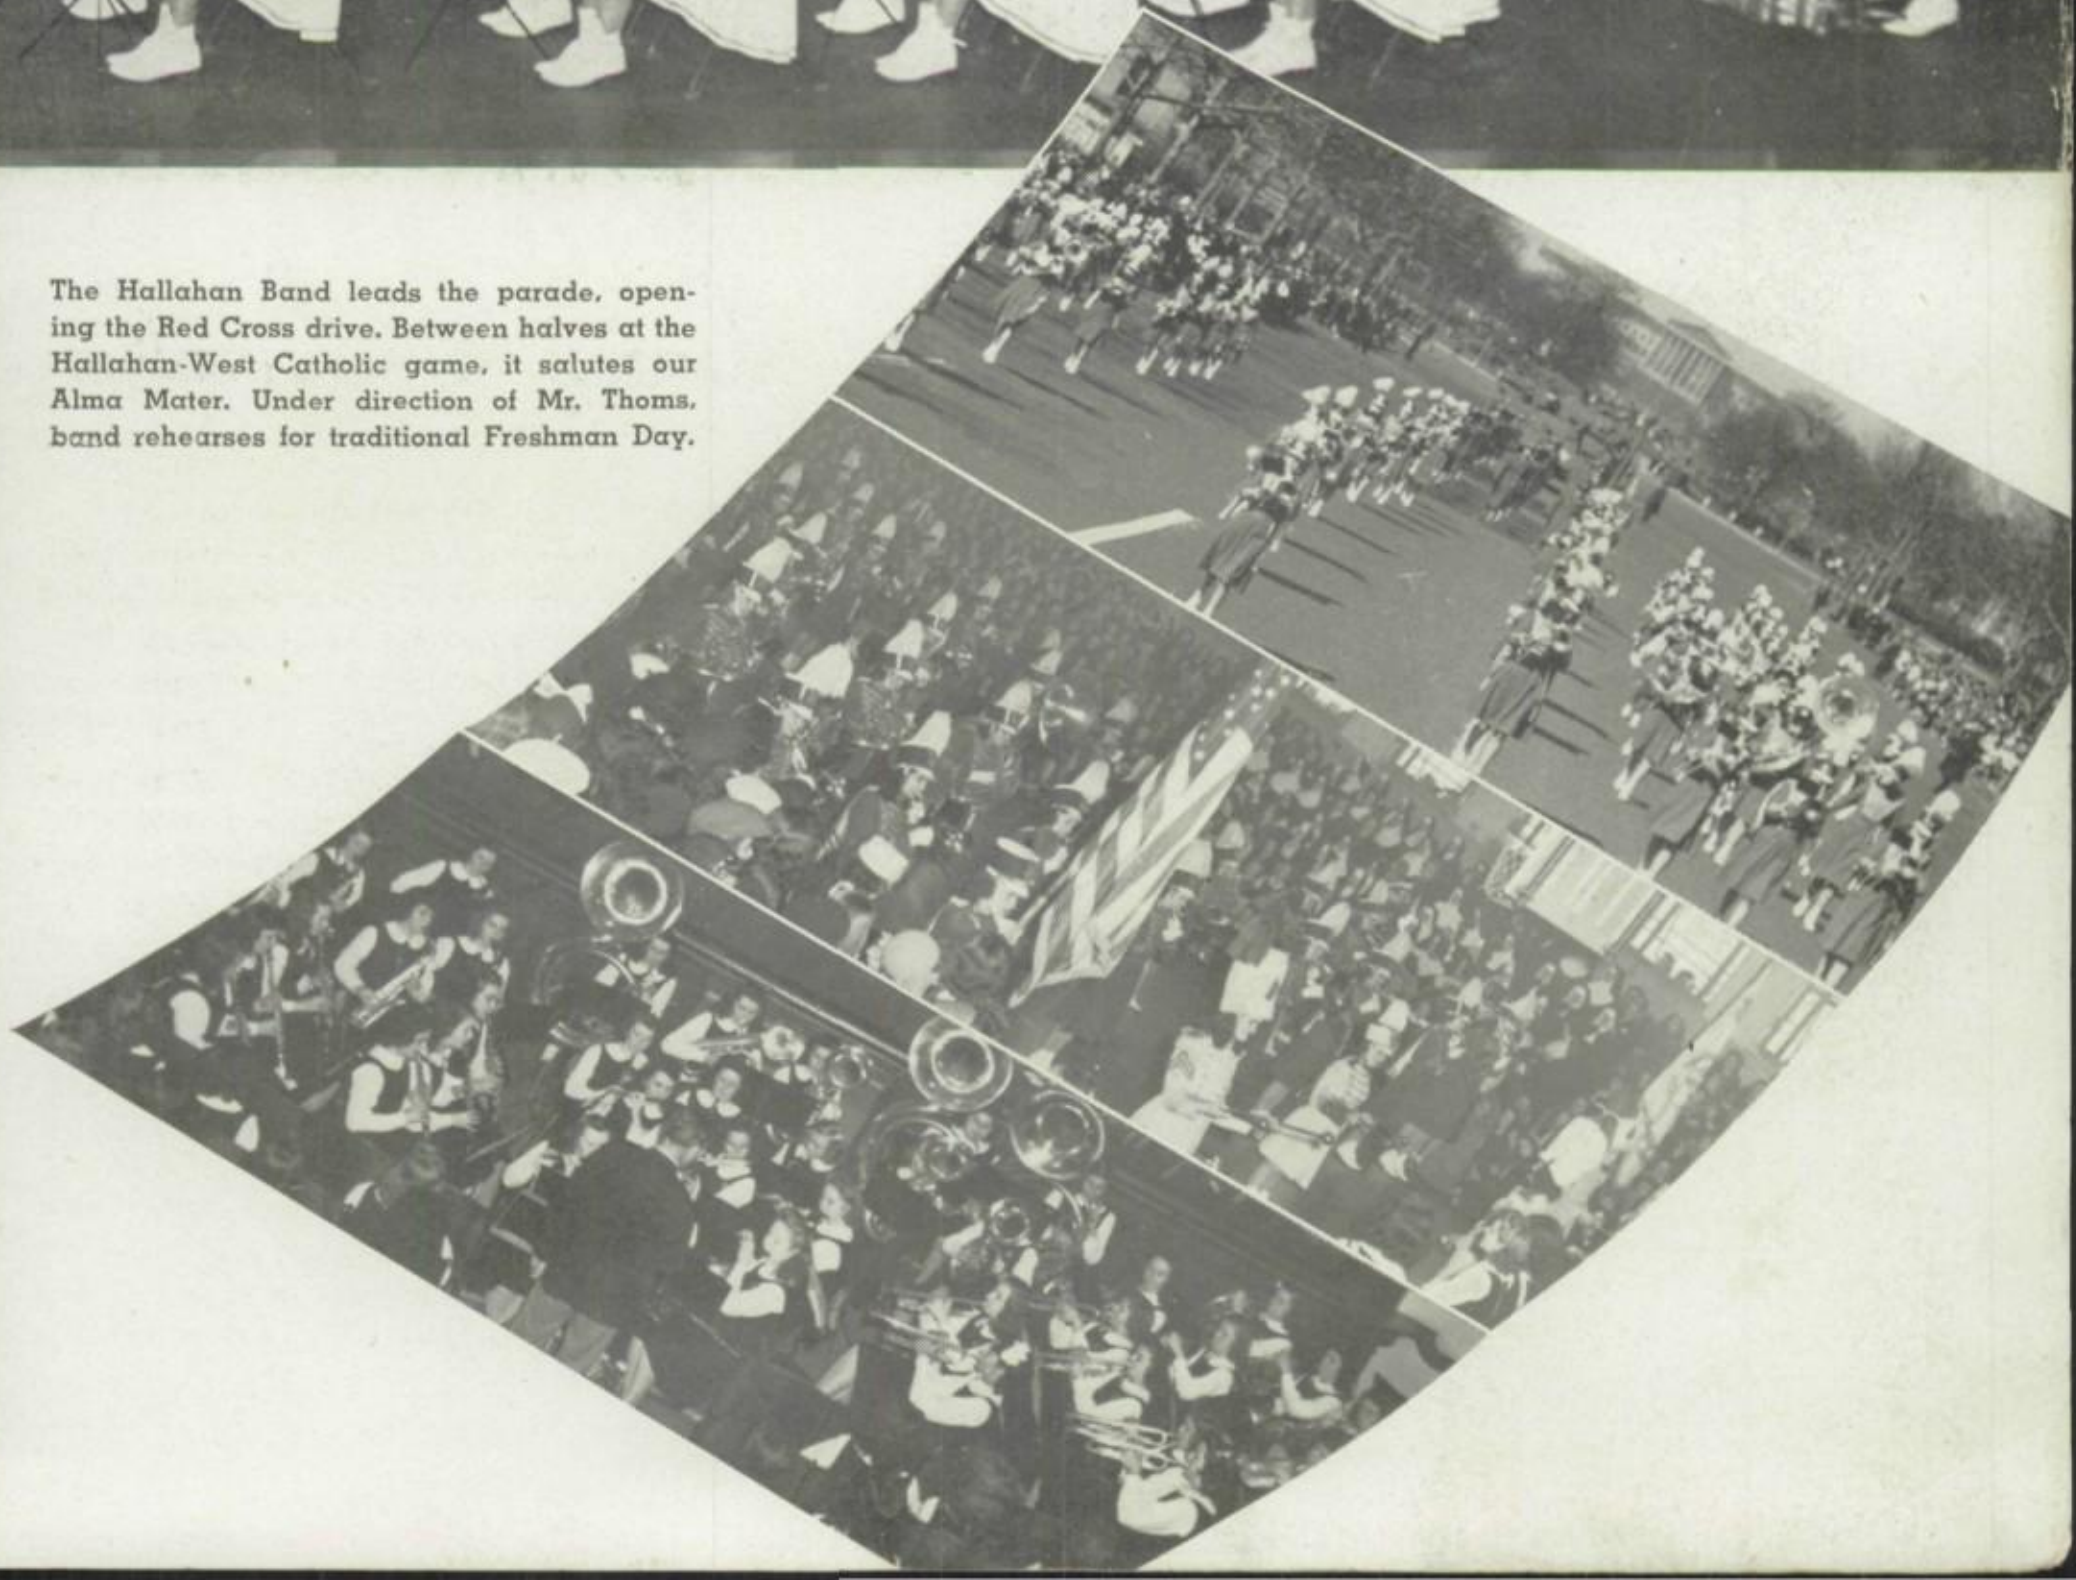

With the familiar beat of drums and marching feet the Hallahan band is once again presented for another season of spirited triumph. The year 1934 marked the first appearance of this Hallahan organization. Since that time the band has grown year after year until finally it has reached its present number of eighty. This progress has become possible through the untiring efforts of the instructors and the members. With its appearance during the basketball season, its lively playing and spectacular drills awaken in the hearts of our students the great spirit that is Hallahan and inspire the team to further success. During the present time of world conflict the Hallahan band is doing its share for victory by keeping up morale as only good music can. Because the spirit of Hallahan shines through the band the school will never be disappointed by its widely famed blue and whifers.

The Hallahan Band leads the parade, opening the Red Cross drive. Between halves at the Hallahan-West Catholic game, it salutes our Alma Mater. Under direction of Mr. Thoms, band rehearses for traditional Freshman Day.

Once More the Blue and White

All Hallahan knows that when they come to a game, the varsity is ready to show them a hard fight. Color, pep and the old Hallahan spirit live in the lively cheers and songs led by our snappy cheerleaders. As always, the Hallahan band adds its music and drills to these games. The support given by the members of the faculty and the strong backing of the student body make the varsity feel that there is something to fight for—their loyal rooters—whom they cannot and will not let down. The fine basketball tradition started by Miss Catherine McPeak is now being carried on by Mrs. Margaret Daley Papieves, a former Hallahanite and once a brilliant player on the Hallahan varsity. Here's to still greater success!

Coach Margaret Daley Papieves is caught giving last minute instructions before the start of the game. Alma Heslin, Elaine Aubrey, and Mildred McNiff are "all ears," listening attentively to what the coach is saying.

Hallahan opened the basketball season by bowing to Bethlehem. This defeat served only to spur the team on to victory, for the next four games were victories for the Hallahan varsity, including a first defeat for Mercy Academy. The next game, however, was an unforeseen setback for Hallahan by Little Flower. The Hallahanites came back strong in the following game by triumphing over Notre Dame. This hard-playing school had previously defeated West Catholic; Hallahan handed her her first defeat after six former victories. On March 17, Hallahan met West Catholic on the neutral Little Flower court, marking the first victory by West Catholic over Hallahan in nine years. So ended the exciting basketball season of 1944.

OF THEE WE

In Field

One of the most beneficial ways of encouraging the normal growth of the body and developing muscular control is found in the swimming sport.

It is amazing to see so many of our students energetically taking advantage of this opportunity.

Although many students do go out for swimming, there is a great deal of talent still hidden among many girls who do not entertain the possibility that they may contain ability for it.

On top we see: Theresa Hyland, Rita Wolpert, Jerry Greener, Hilda Jusits, Helen McNichol, Angela Bruns, Margaret Donahue, Evelyn Burns, Helen Koerner, Carolyn Baldwin, Margaret Guenther. Bottom row: Marion Berkley, Grace DiPietro, Vivian Chasero, Josephine Becker, Lillian Lechner, Captain Grace Kenney, Jane Garrity, Sally McGee, Henrietta DeFeo, Frances Ferris who represent Hanahan at Hockey.

Extreme left: Mary Rita Kendrick, Mary Eliason, Rosemary Echman, Margaret Donahue, Frances Ferris, Mary Ponto, Alberta Paskevicius, Mary Solis, Claire Kolbe, Margaret Creivel, Margaret Guenther, Lucy Finegan and Eleanor O'Donnell comprise our entire squad.

Above and to the extreme left is Rita Wolpert, a junior, who has undoubtedly shown her ability at swimming and fancy diving by the fact that she possesses twenty-nine A. A. medals. In swimming as in every other sport it is the team-work that counts. Rita helped when she took first place against Merchantville for fancy dives, first place in Middle Atlantic A. A. Meet and second place in the 100 yard free style.

The combined symphonic orchestra of the Catholic girls High Schools; after an absence of two years, was heard at the famous Robin Hood Dell in Fairmount Park. This year's performance surpassed all other events that were featured at the Dell. During the summer concert the audience sat entranced from the first harmonious burst of the orchestra until the end of its well-chosen program.

On the Air

To the left we see the Rev. John Lynch, the new voice of Friday morning, giving one of his broadcasts to the student bodies of the Hallahan, West Catholic and Little Flower High Schools. Father Lynch, formerly of the University of Notre Dame, came to our schools this year in the absence of Father Flynn, who is now giving his time to a second religion book.

Above we see the Junior Town Meeting of the Air Program being broadcast from Hallahan High School Auditorium. Adele Pudrowski from Hallahan, Paul Katsif from Girard College High School, and Lenore Lester from the South Philadelphia High discussed phases of voting. To the left we see a picture of the stage during the broadcast with the questioning panel, speakers and announcers from KYW.

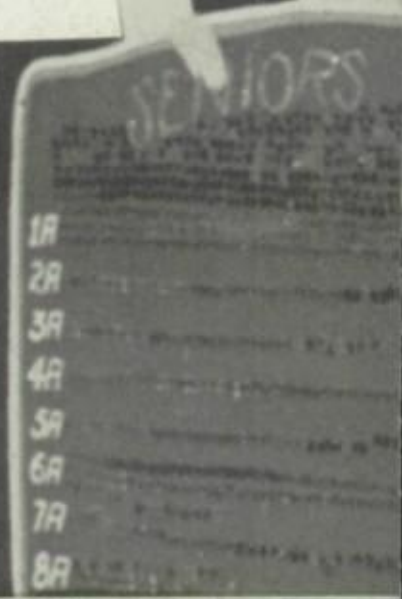

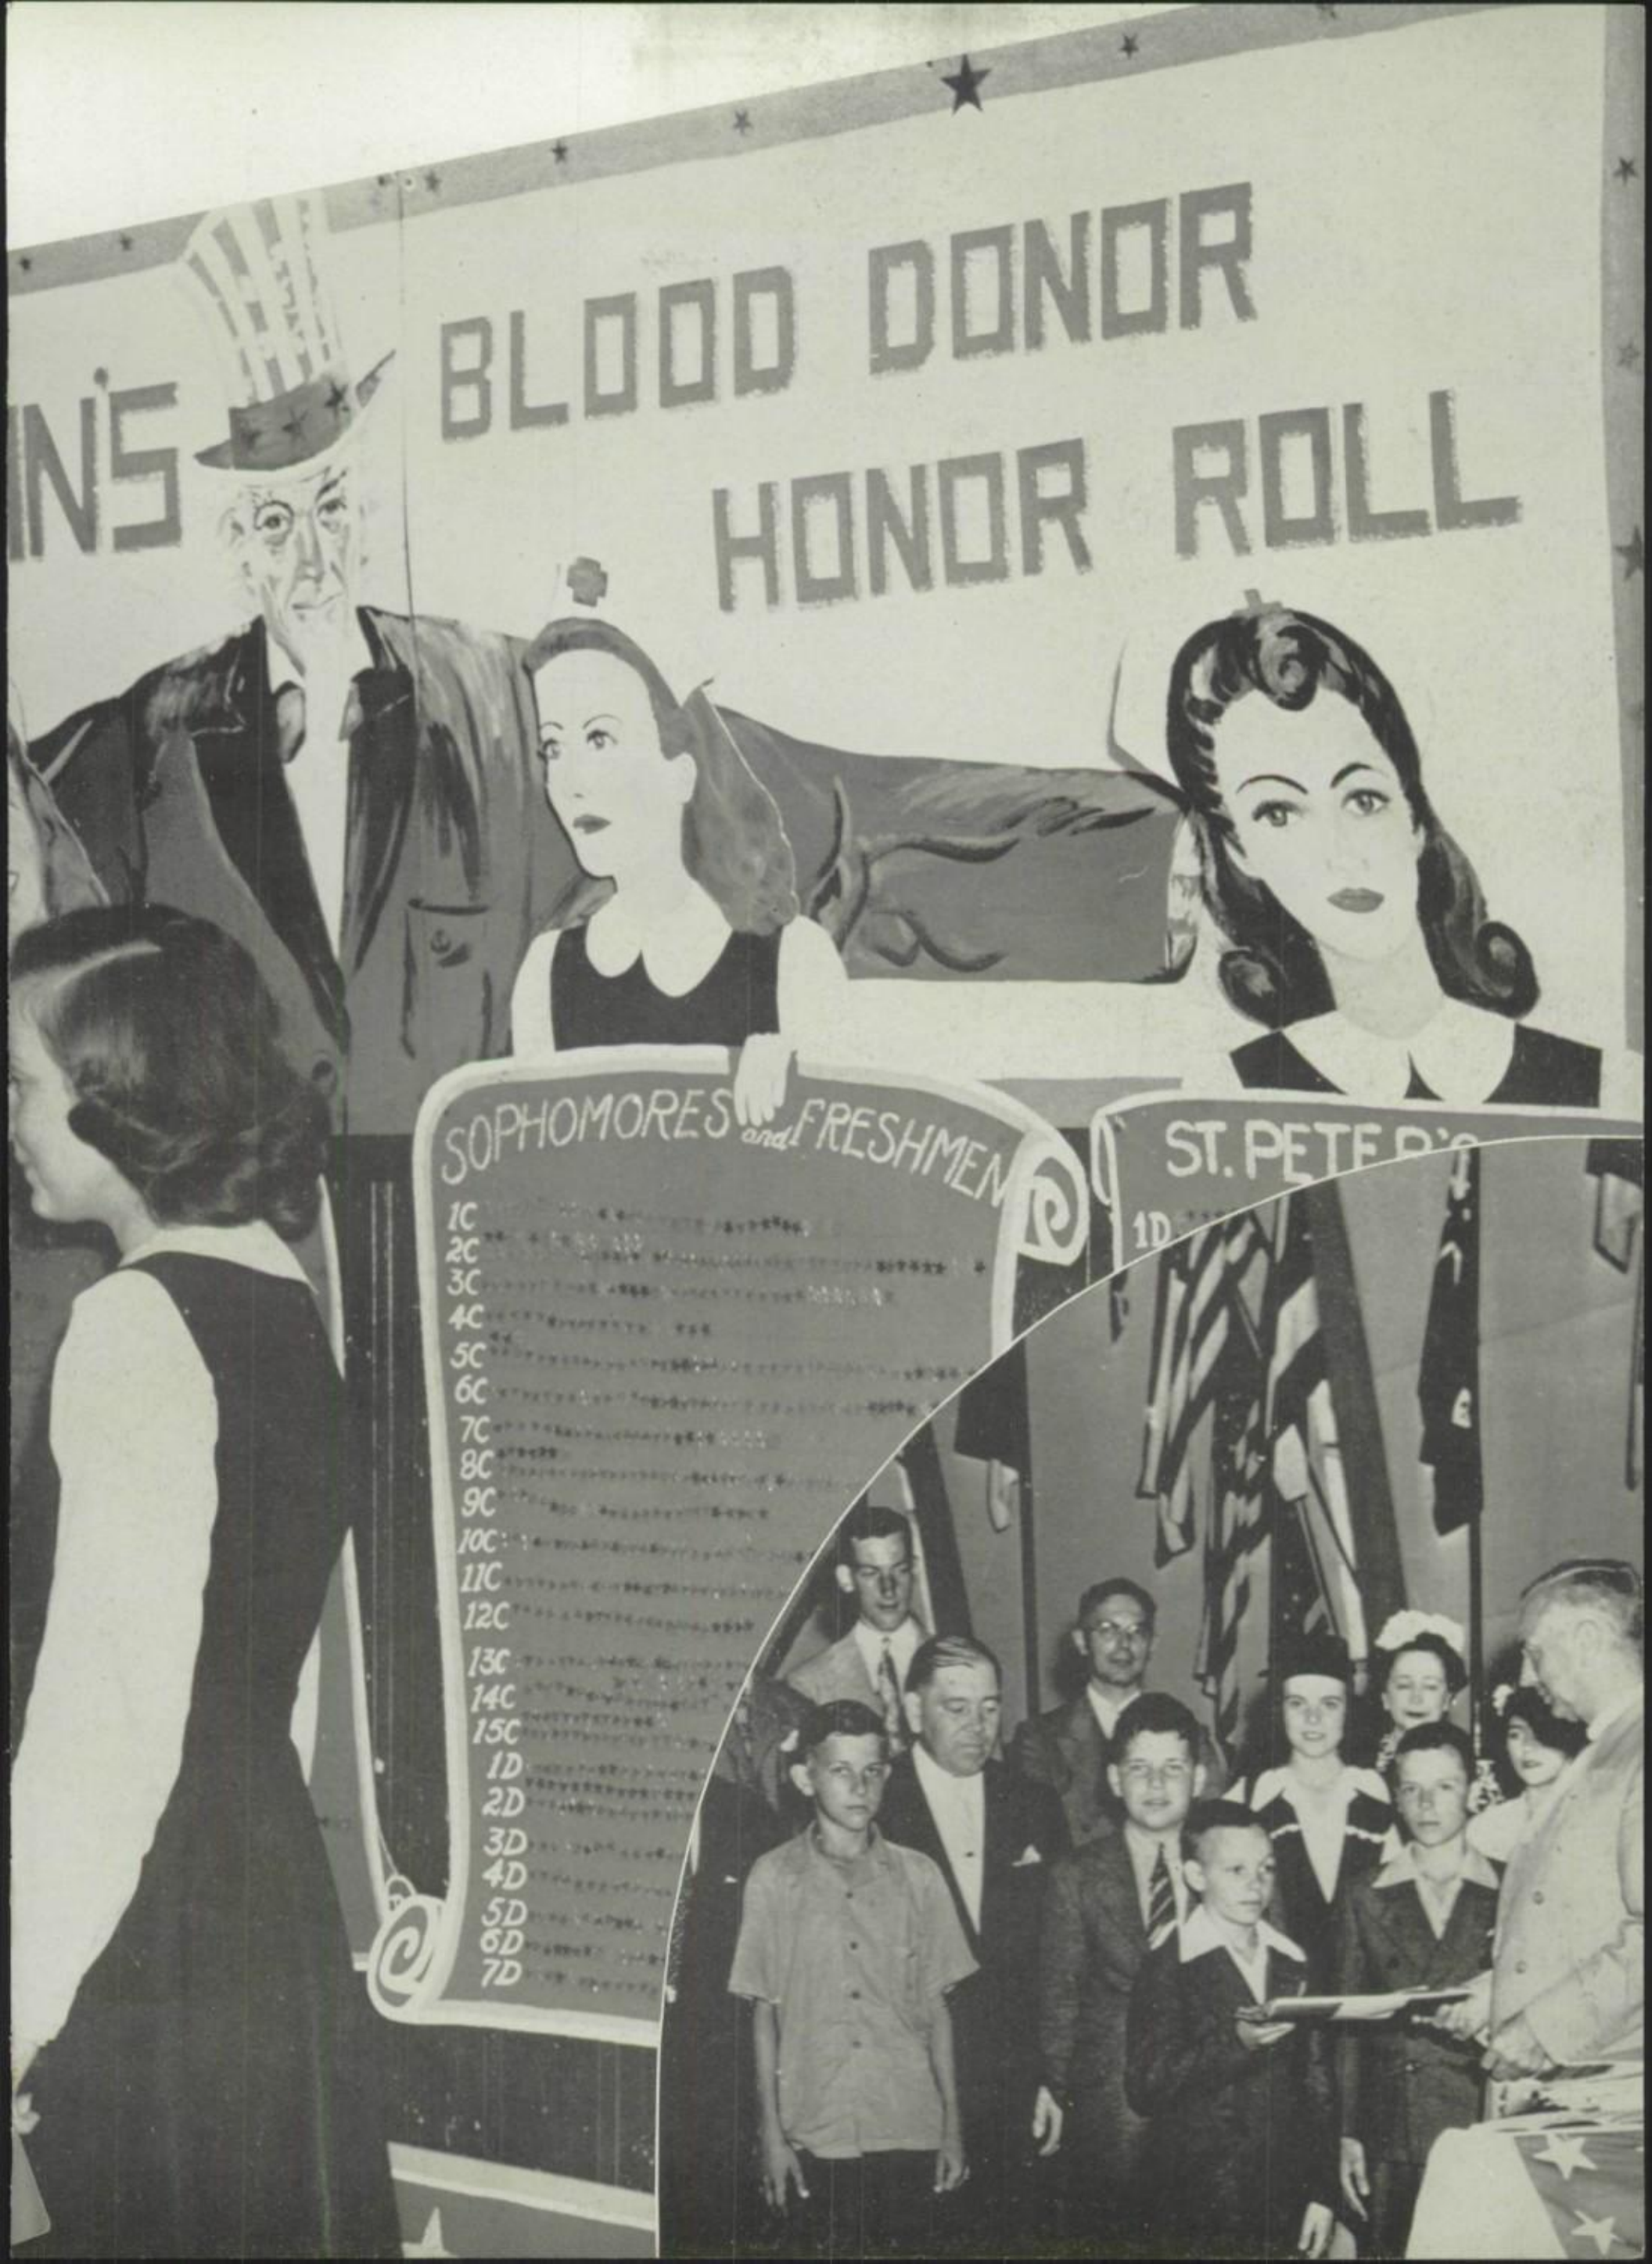

In the school year of 1943-1944, Hallahan was, for the first time, the guest of station KYW which presents the "Junior Town Meeting of the Air." Hallahan students participated in the "Catholic High School How," a radio program which was organized during the past school year. Reverend Joseph S. Hogan, S.J., presided at the "Church of the Air" broadcast where the Senior Glee Club provided the musical entertainment.

Above we see Marie Cadori, Eileen Coursault, Dorothy Preat, Louise Musetti, and Margaret Petter on the Catholic High School Hour, under the direction of Miss Margaret Mary Kearney. To the left, Patricia Mulcrone, Claire Wagner, Dorothy Lamb, Ann Kovacs, Theresa Cronin, Antoinette Martinetti, Irene Cromwell, Vivian Capp, Marcella Scriboni, and Mary Magill on the Church of the Air.
